GHANDI TO BE ARRESTED BY BRITISH

Leader of India Revolt to Be Taken Into Custody Soon

INDIA 'FACES' CRISIS

Situation Grows Grave
Following Resignation of Sec'y. Montagu

LONDON, March 10.—"Mahatma" Gandhi, leader of the non-cooperative movement in India, will be arrested today in the locality of Ajmere, a news agency dispatch from Delhi announced.

The Indian government, following the serious situation created by its demands regarding Turkey and the enforced resignation of Edwin S. Montagu, secretary of state for India, has definitely decided to arrest the famous leader, it was stated.

Grave fears of an uprising in India were felt here following the announcement. It has long been recognized that the arrest of Gandhi, who is regarded as a saint by many Indians and who has steadily preached passive resistance to British rule and the influx of western materialism, would be effected only in a desperate emergency.

Lord Reading and the Indian government has been loath to arrest the Indian "mahatma" who, because he is believed by the natives to possess miraculous powers, exerts tremendous influence throughout India. With his policy of passive resistance, he has consistently restrained Indian fanatics from violence and has in this way been of writing service to the British government.

The prince of Wales, who has been traveling through India for four months, sails for home next Friday. It is reported that his departure will be the signal for severe repressive measures on the part of the badly heckled local administration.

In London, where the resignation of Montagu created a sensation following publication of the Indian government's demands for restoration of the Sultan of Turkey to his suzerainty over the holy places of Islam, the impending arrest of Gandhi brought alarm on the heels of relief.

The press today expressed relief that Montagu had finally left the government. The Indian situation has been growing steadily worse and the Indian secretary's regime has been blamed.

Interest further centers in the probable fate of Lord Reading, viceroy to India, who formulated the Indian demands. It was reported his resignation would follow that of Montagu or that he will be recalled.

NATIONAL HEAD OF P. T. A. DUE IN GLENDALE

Mrs. Higgins, Executive
President of Ass'n. to Be Entertained

The regular meeting of the Central avenue P.T.A. was held Thursday afternoon at the school, Mrs. C. H. Crawford, president, presiding. Mrs. Crawford announced a card party to be given at the home of Mrs. Reed Heustis on North Brand boulevard, March 24, for the benefit of the Philharmonic fund. Tickets can be purchased from the teachers or members of the association.

Mrs. John Robert White also announced that Mrs. Higgins, the National President of the P.T.A. is to visit Glendale April 4, and she is to be entertained with a luncheon at the First Methodist church. Mrs. H. V. Henry then sang "Mother" written by Mrs. Higgins, the national president and "The Minuet" by Mary H. Dodge, accompanied by Mrs. Andree on the piano.

Mrs. Gladys Case of Los Angeles gave a delightful talk on books for children, also giving a list of some of the best books for girls and boys. A cafeteria luncheon is to be served to the children Tuesday afternoon. The food for same will be contributed by the fourth grade mothers.

Miss Perkins' room, the fifth grade, won the picture for this month for the most mothers present. At the close of the meeting tea and cookies were served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Uproar From Chin Proves Distracting if One Would Think

No man can think when his attention is being distracted by the uproar coming from his own chin. You will find this bit of reasoning in John Pilgrim's article tonight on the editorial page in which he speaks about the kind of young men that business men wish to employ.

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" speaking of the squalor, destitution and need on every hand, of political and civic emergency, of distress, hunger and cold asks the pertinent question, what are you doing? In his philosophical way he treats the subject most intelligently. It is a sermon, a warning and an appeal.

Frank Crane writes on foolish questions and he says that one of the most curious twists of the human mind is the contempt which the idle have for the industrious. Editorials on seven different subjects, comment on the day's news, eastern point of view, poetry, wise sayings and other interesting matters will be found on the editorial page this evening.

SPANISH SWINDLE PICKS WHITTAKER FOR VICTIM

Glendalian Peruses Epistle and Turns it Over to Postmaster

The old "Spanish swindle" has come to life again and Glendale is one of the pools into which the bait has been thrown.

Jacob Whittaker of 407 West Harvard received one of the letters and brought it to Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, who at once recognized the game, having read his "Postal Guide" issued by the department at Washington, to some purpose. This swindle, which was carried on quite extensively before the war, was suspended while the conflict was on, when the mails were rigidly censored, but is now being revived. The letter, which was addressed to Mr. Whittaker at Menominee, Wis., was forwarded from there, and reads as follows:

"Dear Sir:—
"Being imprisoned here by bankruptcy proceedings, I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of $36,000 I have in America, being necessary to raise the seizure of my baggage, paying to the registrar of the court the expenses of my trial and recovery my postman team, containing a secret pocket where I have hidden two checks payable to bearer for that sum. As received, I will give to you the third part, viz. $12,000. I cannot receive your answer in prison but you can send a cablegram to a person in my confidence who will deliver it to me, addressed as follows:

"Jose Lamas, Buenavista 16, 'Dec. 14, 1921.
"Yes, Whittaker.
"Awaiting your answer to in-struct you all in secret.
"Now I sign only,
"R. de S.
"First of all, answer by cable, not by letter."

The postal guide states that this swindle was recovered by postman team, as well as the United States. Under the Spanish laws a felony must be consummated before the police can act, and a mere attempt to obtain money by false pretenses does not appear to warrant arrest. Unless the money has been actually paid over and the prosecuting witness is present in person to testify, prosecution is useless.

Most of these swindle letters have been mailed from Barcelona and Madrid, and postmasters are instructed to watch for letters addressed to their patrons from those cities. The plot in these letters varies, but in essentials they are alike. Often the claim the writer is distant relative to the person addressed. If the first letter bears fruit it is followed by others in which the prisoner's daughter plays a part. She is represented as in Spain without a protector and the proposal is made to send her, accompanied by a priest, to the newly found relative if money is sent to release the valise containing the secret receiptable and certificate of deposit. If the relative will accept the trust he is to receive one-fourth of the prisoner's funds.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY 1922 MARKS ERA

President of Irish Republic
Issues Proclamation
on the Festival

GREATEST KNOWN

World-wide Response to Suggestion of Big Demonstration

DUBLIN, March 10.—Michael Collins in a message through the United Press today proclaimed St. Patrick's day, 1922, the greatest in Irish history.

Collins called on Irishmen and Irish sympathizers throughout the world to celebrate on a greater scale than ever before, as the holiday finds Ireland setting up a government of its own and shaking off foreign domination which has caused national decay.

Plans are being made for great patriotic demonstrations in Ireland and a world-wide response to Collins' suggestion of making it the greatest Irish celebration in history is expected.

Collins' message, as handed to the United Press, was signed in Gaelic, Nical O'Coilean. It follows:

(Copyright, 1922, by United Press)
DUBLIN CASTLE, DUBLIN, March 10.—After centuries of struggle, St. Patrick's day, 1922, will see an Irish government taking over control of all Irish affairs.

During the long war for independence, the American people were unstinting in their support of Ireland and now on the eve of our national feast—a greater feast this year than ever before in our history—we thank the American people for their help and sympathy.

A friendship has been built up between Ireland and America which will endure. We assure our friends that with God's help the new Ireland will justify the faith they have always shown.

This is my message through the United Press to the American people and to the friends of Ireland all over the world, as St. Patrick's day approaches.

To realize what the establishment of the new Irish government signifies it must be realized that Ireland in fighting for freedom fought not only for an ideal but for a very vital reality.

Freedom for Ireland was not a luxury but a necessity. The history of foreign government in Ireland is one long story of warfare and tyranny, impoverishment and depopulation and of national decay.

Ireland is not by nature poor, but during the last century her wealth has flowed steadily into English coffers. Emigration followed inevitably upon this export of human beings and of wealth and that national decay was assisted by a foreign government which knew nothing and cared nothing for Irish needs. To put an end to that foreign control was for Ireland an urgent necessity. It is now ended and an Irish government takes over the work of undoing the harm which has been done and of building up the Irish nation.

Final Reading of Bill.
LONDON, March 10.—The third and final reading of the Irish free state bill in the house of lords is expected shortly. Reports from Belfast said that street fighting was renewed last night in the Ulster capital in which two men were fatally wounded.

The situation in Limerick remained critical, with rebel forces increased in numbers.

ORGANIZER FOR GRADE TEACHERS IS HERE

Field Sec'y. of National League Seeks to Align Teachers' Club

Members of the City Teachers' Club assembled for a special session Thursday afternoon and were addressed by Mrs. Baker, field secretary for Oregon and California, for the National League of Grade Teachers.

It is an organization somewhat similar in its aims to the N. E. A., but not affiliated with it and not so comprehensive in its membership, being limited to class-room teachers. Its object is to further the interests of the rank and file of teachers, and the visit was made for the purpose of persuading the teachers' club to become affiliated with the national league. Mrs. Baker's appeal received respectful consideration but no action was taken.

The Council Cleans House

The city council cleaned house last night. It was not a pleasant task. Passion and profanity regaled the ears of the large audience during five hours of offense and defense of Chief of Police Martin. Masks came off and the council saw clearly the mess in the policing system, that faced them.

That they were not unanimous in the performance of the task is an insignificant note of the job they performed.

The vital thing, which should bring satisfaction to the average citizen, is—the job was done, well done, and done at once, finished, complete.

Now, that it is over, the Glendale Press approves heartily the motion of Councilman Lapham that in future private patrol systems be placed under the direct control of the city chief. Every man in such private service should be bonded and subject to discipline. This is done in large cities.

The city has been humiliated by an exhibition of plot and counterplot among its policing force.

They are not employed for this purpose. The sooner this impression sinks in, the more secure the average citizen will feel when he retires for the night.

And the chief of police should be under an efficient police committee of the council, which would hear all complaints, with power to act.

MARTIN ISSUES EARTHQUAKE IS STATEMENT ON CHARGES

Points to Good Record at Pasadena and Welcomes Successor

The following statement was made this morning by Chief of Police A. O. Martin, whose resignation was requested last night by the city council.

"My object in combating the charges placed against me is to see that Glendale is protected from a crowd of plotters.

"I was chief of Pasadena for three weeks and during that time I reduced crime to a minimum and when I resigned the good citizens protested and Editor Runyon of the Pasadena Post told me he had received over 200 letters from citizens, church officials, and clubs objecting to my removal. When asked to resign I was informed by Mr. Koerner, city manager, that he had had a friend in view for the position before I had been appointed by the retiring commission. Since I left there crime has been rampant and one day last week circulars reached our department relative to the burglaries.

"The police chief who does his duty without fear or favor is the man they should back up—the kind of a man who is entitled to draw his salary that the taxpayers pay him. If police chiefs were not allowed to mix in politics and were compelled to retain their jobs on their merits the country would be overrun with criminals. If people of cities larger than Glendale do not have the brains to see that such conditions exist, then let Glendale be pioneer in the movement to remedy such deplorable conditions.

"I have a clipping from yesterday morning's paper which states police statistics show 1200 burglaries in Los Angeles since January 1. Col. Everington, chief of police of Los Angeles, one of the brightest and intelligent men in police service, would be able to cut crime down to the bone if he had the proper support of the people who pay the salaries of the police, but who never do anything to support the man who probably lays awake night trying to devise means of combating crime. It seems to be a popular idea that a man who is a police chief was only given the position temporarily and many good men who are chiefs think the same way.

"When I came here and for some time afterward burglaries were common and stealing accessories from automobiles nightly occurred. Any person who since January 1. Col. Everington, chief of police of Los Angeles, one of the brightest and intelligent men in police service, would be able to cut crime down to the bone if he had the proper support of the people who pay the salaries of the police, but who never do anything to support the man who probably lays awake night trying to devise means of combating crime. It seems to be a popular idea that a man who is a police chief was only given the position temporarily and many good men who are chiefs think the same way.

"Notwithstanding the action of the council I have a clear conscience and know I have done my duty to the taxpayers of Glendale. I only hope that my successor will see that laws are enforced to which end I am willing to sacrifice my time without compensation. I sincerely thank my many friends for the interest they have taken in my behalf."

NIGHT RIDERS FOILED.

CAPTAIN LOVING BECOMES CHIEF

The temporary appointment of Capt. William A. Loving to the office of acting chief of police of the city of Glendale was announced this morning from the office of City Manager W. H. Reeves. Capt. Loving will act as head of the police department until a successor to former Chief of Police Allen O. Martin has been named.

Capt. Loving has been connected with the police department for several months as instructor in the use of the revolver for the members of the department. In this capacity Capt. Loving rated as a dollar-a-year man for the city. He is a retired army officer and has lived in Glendale for many years.

Bulletins announcing Capt. Loving's temporary appointment to the office of chief of police were placed on the police department bulletin board this morning after the office had been turned over to him by Mr. Reeves.

As a result of the hearing of the charges brought against Chief of Police A. O. Martin by several present and past members of the Glendale police force and Mrs. A. G. Smith, the city council last night requested the resignation of Chief Martin, and Officers Geo. Delgado, Geo. J. Herda, Walter Trautwein and J. A. Balthasar.

This decision was reached after what was probably the stormiest session ever held in Glendale, by a vote of three to two, Councilmen Lapham, Kimlin and Stephenson voting aye, and Councilman Davis and Mayor Robinson voting no.

Long before the councilmen were a short session of the committee of the whole had been in progress, the council chamber was crowded to the doors with residents of Glendale who were vitally interested in the outcome of the hearing. The hearing of the charges had been set for 6 o'clock and as early as 5 o'clock the crowd began filling the chamber, which it was obvious, would not be numerous enough to go around. By 6 o'clock there was hardly standing room, and by the time the hearing actually started at 6:45 the "sold out" sign was hung out. But notwithstanding this fact, those anxious to hear the wrangle continued to arrive.

After taking its place the council lost no time in starting the "fireworks," and fireworks in the true sense of the word the proceedings proved to be. At the outset, attorneys were barred from the hearings. For five long hours there was not a quiet moment. When one side was not scoring a "beat," the opposing faction was right on the job. Time and time again the audience broke into applause, only to be called to order by Mayor Robinson, who had his hands full in his endeavor to keep things running along smoothly. The program was re-

POSTOFFICE MEN ATTACKED BY FLU

Half a Dozen Carriers Are Afflicted and Substitutes Work

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson and his staff of 45 are having their troubles on account of "flu." Of the 19 carriers six or seven have been ill and substitutes capable of taking up the work being also impossible to secure, the other carriers have tried to cover these routes in addition to their own. Some of them have staggered around with more than half of another route supplementing their regular load and have returned from their beats exhausted by the extra work. There has also been quite a little sickness among the inside force.

"Under these circumstances," Postmaster Jackson says, "one hundred percent efficiency has been impossible, and we have received some complaints," but we are beginning to get over. The postoffice employees have been wonderful in their loyalty to duty, voluntarily serving over time after strenuous days of service in the effort to cover the demands of the office.

L. A. BANK ABSORBS 1ST NATIONAL

Security Trust & Savings Bank Locates Branch
in This City

MERGES TWO BANKS

Holders of Local Institution Exchange Holdings and Consolidate

As soon as the necessary formalities can be carried out, which will take from 60 to 90 days, the Security Trust & Savings Bank of Los Angeles will open as its Glendale branch what is now the First National Bank of Glendale. Agreements of merger have been signed by which the stockholders of the First National bank, who own all the First Savings bank, will become stockholders of the Security bank. R. F. Kitterman, now cashier and operating head of the local bank will become a vice-president of the Security bank and manager of the Glendale branch.

The Security bank is the largest financial institution in the south-west, with capital and surplus of $10,000,000, and with total resources exceeding $150,000,000.

"The stockholders of this Glendale bank," said Cashier Kitterman, "become by the merger, stockholders of the Security bank. There will be in Glendale, as in Hollywood, Pasadena and Long Beach, a local advisory board of Glendale citizens, which board will control in matters of importance to the local community. In other words, the merger will increase the ability of the institution to serve the community but will not in any manner detract from its local identity. This policy, worked out by the Security bank in other localities, has been successful in keeping the branches directly in touch with every forward looking movement of the locality."

Charles H. Toll, vice-president of the Security bank and one of the leading citizens of Glendale, said of the merger: "The interests of Glendale have been a matter of concern to me for many years. We have our own local interests to protect, yet we are at the same time tied in with Los Angeles in the same way that Long Beach and Pasadena and other Los Angeles cities are tied. Glendale is an integral part of this greater community. The phenomenal growth of the community has brought about the necessity of banks with greater loaning power than is practicable with a purely local institution, and so I feel that the coming of our bank to Glendale means an increase of banking service. I know that my own confidence in Glendale, its present solidity of growth and the probable future development is reflected by the management of the bank, and that we all feel glad of the chance to operate in a field as good as Glendale."

GLENDALE ROTARY CLUB CHARTER RECEIVED

Is Presented Organization
by Elliott Wyman of Los Angeles Club

At the banquet of the Glendale Rotary club, held last night in the assembly room of the Chamber of Commerce, Elliott Wyman, a resident of Glendale and a member of the Los Angeles Rotary club presented the Glendale club with its charter. The charter was received by vice-president Roy L. Kent of the Glendale organization, who made a few appropriate remarks. William Stephens, president of the Los Angeles Rotary club, spoke on the Rotary Conference at San Francisco from March 15 to 18.

"Rotary" was the topic of a talk by William Farrell, former president of the Salt Lake Rotary club, who is now living in Los Angeles and is a member of the Los Angeles organization. William Graham, international convention secretary spoke and told the members of the plans for the international convention to be held in Los Angeles in June. He outlined a tentative program for the period of the convention. Mr. Graham has charge of the arrangement of a program of work and entertainment for the convention.

One of the features of the evening was the talk of Carl Rosenberg, of the Los Angeles club. He gave his "Block Talk" on Rotary, which is well known among Rotarians of Los Angeles and vicinity. There were approximately 79 members of the organization and guests present at the banquet. Mrs. H. A. Sawyer was pianist and entertainment was furnished by eight members of the Ellis club, a musical organization of Los Angeles. The vocal numbers by these musicians were well received by the guests.

FELLOWSHIP IS BUSINESS WOMEN KEYNOTE OF BIG DINNER MARK IMPORTANT EVENT

The fellowship dinner given Thursday evening by the men's bible class of the Glendale Presbyterian church, was a real demonstration of fellowship from the handshaking, with which it began, led by Dr. W. E. Edmonds, to the final good nights after a program of great interest and profit to all participants.

Framing the delicious dinner, at which covers were laid for 150 men, each tagged with his name, was a musical program which began and ended with community singing, conducted by that magnetic and beloved leader, Howard Brown. At intervals the orchestra of the Dynamis club played, and between courses Mr. Hart, chairman of the music committee, led in the singing of "Sweet Adeline" and other familiar college songs.

There were musical stars enough on the after-dinner program to form quite a constellation. The first to be introduced were Keith L. Brooks, teacher of the class, and Mrs. Brooks. They entertained with some decidedly novel musical stunts in which Mr. Brooks played the euphonium with his right hand and the piano with his left. Mrs. Brooks accompanying on the saxophone. They were, of course, enthusiastically encoored and when called upon later in the evening sang in duet, Mr. Brooks playing the piano accompaniment.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Winder, of Glendale, baritone and soprano sang "One Fleeting Hour" and "Face to Face" very beautifully.

The Harmony male quartet of Tabor college, was given a warm welcome. These fine young fellows who are working their way through college, specialize in gospel songs. They have been singing at the Bible Institute and in the churches of Los Angeles and have made a hit wherever they have appeared. Their contributions on this occasion included "The Seat," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "My Old Cabin Home Among the Hills" and other tuneful lyrics. They gave the closing number on the program.

Dr. J. K. Gikerson told a number of funny stories in his best style and then the orator of the evening, C. A. Gummere, was introduced.

He is manager of the Los Angeles offices of the Cleveland Discount company, but his heart is in religious work of the most practical sort and for 19 years he went up and down the United States trying to give his message to men, particularly young men, while serving on the sales force of the National Cash Register company.

He proved a very magnetic, emotional speaker, able to hold the absorbed interest of his audience. He said many fine things, declaring in the outstart that men have a right to think, in other words, to weigh and analyze the assertions and precepts that are offered to them.

His theme was "Blue Prints," i.e. the visualized plans upon which structures are built and which must serve as guides to the builders. They are the necessary preliminaries to the concrete realization of the visions of the planner in a form capable of resisting the elements and standing as monuments to a great ideal, he said.

He dwelt on the importance of carrying out these blue prints in detail. "God Almighty has furnished you with a blue print," he declared, "and unless you carry it out in detail you can never expect to be anything or get anywhere."

"It is important to deliver the right kind of goods in the beginning. If you give out something inferior you may queer all the rest of your product."

"The blue print was handed down from the beginning. If there were a better blue print it would have been found before now. The biggest leaders in America today in every line of endeavor are the men who have followed this blue print, the bible. If it was good enough for them, it ought to be good enough for you."

At the conclusion of Mr. Gummere's talk, A. W. Horn, who had general charge of the evening's program, thanked the speaker and Mr. Gummere was elected an honorary member of the bible class.

Dr. Edmonds also paid tribute to Mr. Gummere, saying he had been tremendously impressed by his application of the blue print. He also referred to his remembrance of a similar evening 11 years ago in the same room, when the men's bible class numbered but 15 members. Now it has ten times that number and it looking forward to the new church, in which it will be able to do still bigger things.

He compared "duty" with "service," defining duty as something a man is compelled to do as opposed to service, which is what he wants to do. An illustration of the lesson he sought to bring home was the story he told of an English physician awakened one stormy night by a knock upon his door. On opening it he found an old man who begged him to come to his son, who was very ill. Hesitating a moment because of the hour and the character of the night, he decided it was his duty to go, and accompanied the man. The patient to whom he ministered that night was Lloyd George, now prime minister of England. Had he neglected that duty, where might England have been today?

Dr. Edmonds also spoke appreciatively of the co-operation of the men's class in the work of the Y. M. C. A., and announced the nation-wide every member canvass set for next Sunday. He also said that the 26th of March will be the greatest day that the Presbyterian church has ever known because something so big will then be announced that it will astonish everybody.

Tonight is an important one in the annals of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club because the first of its trio of entertainments will be given at 7:45 in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce, where Miss Christabel Pankhurst, the great English suffragette and war worker, will speak on "Ideals of Women, False and True." Mrs. Charles H. Toll of this city, president of the Los Angeles Ebell club, before which Miss Pankhurst was a speaker, characterizes her as a "brilliant woman" who made an exceedingly favorable impression on the club. Her address gave plenty of food for thought and she herself, as an attractive young woman, sincere and unaffected, was of special interest. Glendale does not often have such opportunities and it is hoped many women will avail themselves of the chance to hear Miss Pankhurst, the tickets being but 75 cents, or $2 for the course of three entertainments.

SHORT CHANGE MEN MAKE LITTLE

Short change swindlers worked Glendale yesterday and succeeded in victimizing at least three merchants and were foiled by the clerk of a fourth.

About 11 a. m. a report was made to the police department by Kodigan Brothers who conduct a small store at Adams street and Colorado avenue. They reported that four men drove up to their store and entered, one of them making a small purchase and tendering a $10 bill in payment. After receiving his change the man discovered that he had a $1 bill. The proprietor of the store was asked to return the $10, take back his change and take pay for the purchase out of the $1 bill. The exchange was made and after the men left the proprietor of the store found that in the transaction he had been victimized for $5.

The next report came from J. W. Mueller who conducts a grocery at 1414 South San Fernando road. He said two men worked the game on him. His description differed from that given by Kodigan Brothers.

While police officers were looking for the four men the swindlers entered the Chaffee store, 112 North Brand boulevard and were foiled by T. L. Totman, who refused to return the $10 bill to the men until he had counted his change and found that it was correct. When the men left the store Mr. Totman followed. By the time he located a policeman the men had disappeared. The men entered the Gordon Ladies Wear store and were working the same trick. There they purchased a pair of scissors offering a $10 bill in payment. After they left and Mr. Totman with an officer entered in search of the men, the clerk who had made the change was sure that she had not been victimized. The cash register checked that the swindlers had secured $5.

MYSTERY MURDER AT MONTROSE

A few minutes after he left the home of Chendo Ruiz, on the Frank Urquidez ranch, near Montrose, Rafael Carmona, 60-year-old Mexican laborer, was found dead. He had been shot through the left arm by a 33-caliber bullet, the bullet penetrating the body. The sheriff's office in Los Angeles was notified at once and an investigation of the killing started. Deputy Sheriff Reyes and Sepulveda have been assigned to the case and according to an announcement from the sheriff's office this morning are looking for Ruiz in the belief that he may know something of the killing. The body was taken to the Pulliam & Kiefer undertaking establishment in this city, where it will be held pending an examination by Autopsy Surgeon Wagner for Los Angeles county, and the coroner's inquest to follow.

According to the information given out this morning by Under Sheriff Biscailuz, indicating the lines along which the investigation of the killing is proceeding, Carmona was seen to leave the house of Ruiz approximately ten minutes before the shooting occurred. The dead man was shot with a bullet from a 33-caliber revolver and Ruiz is known to have had such a gun in his possession. Another side of the investigation is that Ruiz disappeared shortly after the shooting and has not been seen since. According to information at the sheriff's office, there has been no quarrel between the two Mexicans.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD INITIATION

At the regular meeting of the Odd Fellows lodge Thursday night in its new home on West Broadway, the initiatory degree was put on for one candidate in a quite splendid manner.

The work was followed by a supper in the banquet hall, served by the men of the lodge, at which covers were laid for about 40 visitors, men who have come to Glendale from the east. A good many impromptu after-dinner speeches were made by members and visitors on the spirit of Odd Fellowship and the beautiful home of the lodge. Its membership has increased about 25 per cent within the past month and is growing steadily, having a present enrollment in the neighborhood of 90. Next week an order will be placed for the new regalia which is felt to be necessary in the present quarters.

The lodge voted to attend in a body the funeral of Mrs. Hortense M. Lund, which will be held this afternoon at the Soeven parlors and will be in charge of Carnation Rebekah lodge, of which she was a member.

La Crescenta

LA CRESCENTA, March 10.—Two brush fires, one near "Hi-Up" ranch, the home of Harvey S. Bissell, and one near the H. Biescar ranch, caused much excitement early Wednesday morning. A high wind added much to the danger. Some 20 men motored up to

Registration Closes March 11 for Balloting on April 10

The city trustees, in session Monday evening, transacted considerable business of importance, besides opening the eight bids received for the construction of the proposed city hall. The contractors submitting estimates were as follows: Los Angeles Construction company, $24,980; W. W. Leavers, $26,200; Stanton & Hubert, $26,680; Lapper & Laisy, $28,986; Richardson Building & Engineering company, $24,575; Hermon & Carroll, $26,947; Darrell Condley company, $25,902; Rommel Construction company, $2,950. The contract will be awarded next Monday night, to the lowest bidder.

A request for the improvement of the roadbed of North, Ellis, North Delaware, West Hill, and Los Flores avenues, was received from the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank, which is about to place a tract on the market in that section. The city engineer and attorney were instructed to prepare the necessary papers for the work.

A communication from the City of Los Angeles stated that the resolution of the Eagle Rock Trustees requesting that Glassell road be improved had been taken up and the city engineer instructed to prepare an ordinance of intention for the improvement of that portion of the road between Mountain View avenue and York boulevard.

An invitation from the Regional Planning commission in Los Angeles, to attend a luncheon at the City club rooms on Saturday, at 12 o'clock, was read. All city officials and civic voters of the county who are interested in conferring on the matter of zoning ordinances are eligible to attend the luncheon, which will be the regular 60-cent meal furnished by the club. At Pasadena, South Pasadena, Long Beach, Glendale and other cities are adopting zoning systems, it will be interesting to compare notes and regulations.

In compliance with the petition from the local chamber of commerce for the city engineer to investigate the feasibility of modifying the grades on Hill avenue, preparatory to opening it through to Colorado boulevard at each end, instructions were given for this to be done and estimates of the cost of changing the grades submitted. Three night policemen were appointed, namely: Frank Kenniston, Robert Walker and S. Bailey. Each will be paid $50 a month from the city treasury, the remainder of their salary to be met by private subscription from the residents protected. These men are well known citizens and there will be no repetition of the thievery and fight that resulted last month from the private employment of a watchman supplied by a detective agency in Los Angeles.

An election was called for April 10, when three city trustees will be chosen, and the election boards were appointed. In this connection City Clerk Martos called attention to the fact that registration of voters closes on March 11, and to accommodate those who have not yet registered, the city hall will be kept open Saturday afternoon of this week until 5 o'clock, and from 7 to 9 Saturday evening, also on Friday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

assist Mr. Bissell and Mr. Biescar. C. J. Young pulled the fire trailer up, which did splendid work.

The regular meeting of the La Crescenta Women's club was held at the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. F. H. Anderson, presiding. A letter of resignation was read from Mrs. Belle Miller, who is leaving for the east soon. The club refused to accept Mrs. Miller's resignation, voting her an honorary life membership, also planning to make the tea hour of the next meeting a reception to Mrs. Miller, who has been one of the most active members of the club for many years, and will be greatly missed. Mrs. Seymour Thomas read a very interesting letter from the club's adopted orphan in France. The club also gave a vote of thanks to the group of young people for their generous donation to the building fund of the club—the proceeds of a dance given last Saturday evening. Ten dollars was voted for prizes for a wild flower show to be given to school children in May. An interesting half hour of current events was followed by a reception to Mrs. Harvey N. Fowler of Chicago. Mrs. Fowler is a non-resident member of the club. Mrs. C. E. Culbertson and Mrs. J. S. Conlin were co-hostesses. They were assisted by Mrs. T. S. Minford, Mrs. F. K. Cernick and Mrs. J. Irwin. Mrs. Seymour Thomas poured.

Howard Reynolds has returned from a two months' stay in the east.

C. C. Sears of Sears & Craft grocery firm of Los Angeles avenue, escaped serious injury Monday evening. In driving from Pasadena through Flintridge, Mr. Sears was blinded by the lights of an approaching car, ran into a telephone pole and wrecked his car. Mrs. Sears, who was in the car, is suffering from the shock and several painful cuts.

Another miraculous escape on Monday was that of Victor Evans, connected with the Sutherland school. Mr. Evans was driving on Honolulu avenue near Los Angeles avenue when his car struck a small rock and turned turtle, wrecking the top, windshield and breaking the axle. Outside of a few bruises and cuts, Mr. Evans experienced no ill-effects from the accident.

Truths in Epigram

The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them. — Goldsmith (1728-1774).

Type of the wise who soar but never roam; True to the kindred points of heaven and home. — Wordsworth (1770-1850).

A mystic bond of brotherhood makes all men one. — Carlyle (1795-1881).

DAPPER CLERKS

Why are clerks always dapper? And are they always dapper as a matter of fact or is that a word the newspaper writers use readily, just as they make negroes burly? We confess we are unable to say. But every time a clerk is missing with a bundle of securities, he is set forth as dapper. And what is dapper, anyway? We take it dapperness is something of the nicety and exactness of dress that we see in clothing store windows when dummies bring us the latest in men's fashions.

We are constrained to discuss this fact from the disappearance of a dapper clerk in Philadelphia, with several hundred thousands of dollars in securities belonging to the dental department of the university. And we are of the opinion that, as disappearing clerks are always dapper, it is well for those having to do with too-dapper clerks to be on their guard.

We never read of dapper bank presidents, captains of industry, professional men, or the like. The distinction, if it is a distinction, seems to be reserved for clerks. Why that should be we cannot say. We can only suggest that the instant a clerk becomes too altogether dapper, he will bear watching.

THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP SEA

We are of the opinion that if congress is to enact a bonus bill for the adjusted compensation of veterans of the late war, it would do better to provide for its expenditures by levying a tax sufficient to meet it. It may be the part of financial wisdom and statesmanship to issue certificates on which loans may be made and then liquidate the cost of the whole plan for several years, but that looks like deliberately putting off the day of payment to a future time, without any provision for that payment.

President Harding is said to be against the present plan. Doubtless the President thinks it would be better to provide for what cash payments may be necessary with a tax here and now. The makers of the loan certificate plan talk rather glibly in terms of hundreds of millions, but loans of half a billion to a billion dollars have to be absorbed by somebody.

Congress in the whole matter of adjusted compensation seems to stand between fear of the displeasure of the veterans of the late war on the one hand and fear of the displeasure of the taxpayers on the other. It is not perhaps a pleasant prospect for the congressman who is seeking re-election as congressmen usually are. Neither is the straddling of the issue a pleasant spectacle.

WASHINGTON AND HIS FRIENDS

It is said that for his purposes sometimes the devil quotes scripture. And so, for the same or similar purposes often, some of our statesmen and publicists and journalists resurrect or bring out from their forgetfulness the picture and memory of George Washington and make him an argument against any treaty or agreement with any foreign nation.

It is to be regretted that the immortal Washington cannot himself be heard in the present crisis of world affairs. We have no doubt his first activity would be to shake loose from his coatails some of the persons seeking rescue from oblivion by clinging to them. If Washington were today selecting political friends, they would perhaps be of a type altogether different from those who are forever quoting Washington as opposed to friendly relations with the English, the French, or other peoples.

Times have changed since this government was founded. And with changed times there must be a change of attitude. We are a part of the world. We will remain so. We shall defend ourselves when necessary. But it is not necessary to go about with a chip on our shoulders.

THE TROUBLED IRISH

If the Irish continue to fight each other it will be apparent that it was not solely the presence of English troops that was creating hatred and bitterness. For the British troops are out of the present scrimmage and the Irish seem to find plenty of material for quarreling within their own body politic. Some of these days the Irish will lose the sympathy of a lot of people who have been warmly sympathetic, if they do not take advantage of a reasonable opportunity for peace and harmony.

The recent treaty, it would seem, would afford any reasonable people a chance to live with peace, with opportunity and with as much self-respect and independence as any people needs. If the wiser heads among the Irish people are not able to bring about peace and order, the Irish will be losers in the opinion of the world, and the good opinion of the world is especially worth having at the present time. Habits of bombing, kidnapping, shooting from ambush, rioting and sharpshooting or sniping are good habits for any people to forego.

THEN AND NOW

Politics develop queer methods of thinking. The democratic leaders of the opposition to the four-power treaty inveigh against it because, they declare, it compels the United States to go to the aid of any of the other signatories. In the matter of the treaty of Versailles, they defended Article Ten, which did that thing specifically and without equivocation. The opposition to the present treaties would seem to be more political than patriotic.

Either the democratic leaders were right then and wrong now or they were wrong then and right now. Whatever may be the fact, they were pro-administration then because it was democratic and they are anti-administration now because it is republican. And that being the case, we may not be as much frightened by their fulminations and declarations as their noise and apparent vehemence warrant.

The four-power treaties will in all probability be ratified. We will not perish as a government because of the ratification. We will continue to hold our heads with courage and without shame. But we shall have a period in which there is less jingoism and eagle-screaming and opportunity for what in the expressive language of the street is known as "bunk."

HAYS AND MOVING PICTURES

Former Postmaster General Will Hays gives out a statement on his entrance into the moving picture business that is sane and gives promise of useful service. He does not expect to revolutionize anything or by one supreme fiat to command all to be as everybody thinks it should be. But he appreciates the moving picture as a great educational entertainment and inspirational possibility and his aim is to help with its wholesome, proper and beneficial development.

There is room for his work. And he brings to it plenty of organizing ability and sound sense. The moving picture has been for a long time in a state of flux. At first a fad, it is outgrowing its state of faddism and taking on a different state and method. It is, in a great degree, a new thing. Its possibilities are even many more than have been so far developed. It differs from the spoken drama and from the fiction of literature. It needs a lot of study and shaping and sincerity of purpose.

There is possibility in the moving picture field to invite the best minds of the country. And if it is to grow, to say nothing of mere survival, it needs the best minds in its development. It needs to be something more than a mere money-getter.

JEFFRIES AND THE PLATFORM

We are a bit confused as to the varying reports from the camp of ex-Champion James J. Jeffries. We do not know whether to believe he is to enter the evangelical field, as has been reported from one quarter, or whether to treat the report as merely flippant and idle rumor.

A recent press account tells of the, what we might term experimental, appearance of the former heavyweight, in which he sets forth that we are to be satisfied if we do pretty much as we please, and let conscience be the guide. That seems fair enough, except that in too many cases, when we are doing pretty much as we please, conscience ceases to guide to any great extent.

Neither do we know who is back of the proposed activities of the ex-champion in his new field, if it is to be his field. The presence of certain well-known personages who have had to do with promoting would indicate that there may be a well-conceived plan to exploit the ex-champion for the shekels he may bring into the contribution box. This is perhaps a base suggestion, but it occurs naturally enough.

So if the ex-champion is to be taken from the plow and the field and the coral and made into an exporter, we cannot at this time say whether the gain to evangelism will compensate us for the loss to agriculture. We shall see what we shall see, as a prominent statesman once said.

A small boy's idea of a board of health is a chance to eat whenever he is hungry.

Work is a good name for a cabinet officer.

FOOLISH QUESTIONS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Every once in a while the scientists seem to run off into foolish questions along with the rest of mankind. There are wealthy gentlemen whose chief concern in life is to collect walking sticks. Others will amass snuff boxes, candlesticks and china.

There is a certain pride men and women have in the useless. And this is an ancient and honorable pride; one that has come down to us through a long line of monarchs and nabobs who, having nothing else to do, invented new forms of vanity.

One of the most curious twists of the human mind is the contempt which the idle have for the industrious; and which those who are devoting themselves to something trifling have for those who are occupied with useful work.

The endowed loafer in England who spends his winters chasing pretty girls in the city and his summers in chasing wild game in the country considers himself in a class entirely above the honest grocer who works for a living.

All club men and sportsmen and society ladies and other daddlers, dabbles and do-nothings turn up their distinguished noses at those who are driven by daily occupation.

All this has been bred in us through generations of ignorant ancestors, and many a mother today would rather hand her daughter over to an idle duke than to an industrious architect.

A certain scientist has been carefully measuring the heads of some 2000 school children and remeasuring them at certain intervals. Some of the conclusions of this investigation are that the size, especially the breadth, of a girl's head increases very rapidly up to the age of ten, vastly more quickly than that of a boy, whose increase begins rapidly about ten; that the girl's head and the color of her hair and eyes are pretty well fixed at the age of fifteen and that the intellectual capacity of girls and boys corresponds to the variation of the head measurements and the color of the hair and eyes. Furthermore that girls are, on the whole, more rounded-headed and boys more long-headed.

To all of which we might reply: "What of it?" Such conclusions in their importance very much resemble chasing the dative case through 130 languages.

The researches of another scientist into the life and habits of the house are of another character; for upon the information thus amassed perhaps we can discover some way to get rid of this vermin. The one mark that distinguishes the true modern scientist from the learned men of the days before Francis Bacon is that the results obtained must have some bearing upon human life and purpose.

An appropriate motto that ought to hang over every scientist's desk or on the walls of his laboratory is, "What is the use?"

(Copyrighted by Dr. Frank Crane)

THE LISTENING POST

Yes, it was sad enough, to be sure. A pitiful and pitiable case. Squalor and destitution and need. And you saw it and it made you sympathetic and brought tears to your eyes perhaps.

So then comes the fitting question: What did you do about it? Did you content yourself with feeling sad and sympathetic and talking about it to somebody. Or did you help? Did you do some definite and real thing to remedy the distressing situation? That is after all the important thing.

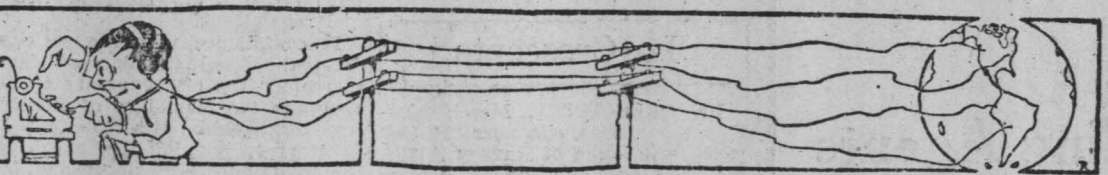

Or it was a political or civic emergency. Something needed to be done. A struggle between the right and the wrong. Between justice and injustice. And you knew the situation was there to meet.

You talked about it perhaps. Agreed that it was the time for all good men to come to the aid of the righteous cause. You laid down the law to your neighbor in no uncertain terms. But what did you do about it?

Or there was an emergency. Flood or fire somewhere. Many people distressed and in need. The papers were full of it. Homes destroyed and people out of work and wanting food and clothing.

You read about it. You thought of the horrors of fire and flood. Of the distress and hunger and cold. And it brought tears to your eyes almost. But what did you do about it? Again comes that same question.

Or there was a nearby situation needing to be met and disposed of. A crooked leader to be exposed and deposed.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Foreloper—By Rudyard Kipling (1865—)

The gull shall whistle in his wake, the blind wave break in fire,
He shall fulfill God's utmost will unknowing His desire;
And he shall see old planets pass and alien stars arise,
And give the gale his reckless sail in shadow of new skies.
Strong lust of gear shall drive him out and hunger arm his hand
To wring his food from a desert nude, his foothold from the sand.
His neighbors' smoke shall vex his eyes, their voices break his rest,

He shall go forth till South is North, sullen and dispossessed,
And he shall desire loneliness, and his desire shall bring
Hard on his heels a thousand wheels, a people, and a king;
And he shall come back in his own track, and by his scarce-cool camp;
There he shall meet the roaring street, the derrick, and the stamp;
For he must blaze a nation's ways with hatchet and with brand.
Till on his last-won wilderness an Empire's bulwarks stand.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

GAUM AND THE TREATIES
(Springfield Union)

One of the most obvious facts in connection with the United States senate is that it has more than enough business between now and a summer adjournment to keep itself fully occupied without spending an unnecessarily long time in the demonstration of its prerogatives in relation to the new treaties. These agreements, like any other made with foreign nations, covering many important details, have necessarily been arrived at through some compromises—concessions by all parties. They must be judged in their entirety and by what they accomplish.

One of the objections now being made to the naval treaty is that the United States agrees not to fortify Guam and the Philippines. If this was a concession by the United States, it was balanced by certain concessions on the part of England and Japan. But it hardly appears as a concession on our part when, as a matter of fact, congress has for twenty years refused to appropriate money for the fortification of Guam and the establishment of a naval base there, and has been equally reluctant to vote money for fortifications in the Philippines. It is unlikely that congress would be more willing at the present time when it is seriously considering naval cuts that would affect our own home defenses.

The real question to consider is whether our national safety in the Pacific is not better guaranteed under the treaties which base it upon the honor of the nations party to it than it would be by going ahead with naval competition and the construction of costly naval bases and fortifications and that question should neither require a long dragging debate nor reservations that might put in jeopardy concessions that have been made by other governments.

MacNIDER CRACKS THE WHIP
(New York Evening Post)

The President of the United States has received his orders from the commander of the American Legion. Only the other day Mr. Harding wrote to Mr. Fordney that he was in doubt about the wisdom of a bonus bill at the present time. Mr. MacNider now informs Mr. Harding that he must entertain no doubts. The President of the United States is virtually informed that either he does not know what he is talking about or else that he is aligned with the "negligible minority of the selfish interests entrenched in great financial centers." In the name of the million ex-soldiers, which is pretty nearly five times as much as the legion membership, and in the name of fifteen or twenty million dependents, who for the greater part do not exist, the commander of the legion demands that the bonus bill be passed without delay. In the latter part of his communication Mr. MacNider condescends to argue with Mr. Harding. But the essence of his telegram is not a plea, but a command, Mr. MacNider.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

This is just for women readers. Men please skip! Isn't it funny—the way we have of reading the newspapers? Something like this; some of us. "Congress Hard at Work." Well, it's up to them to run the country. I don't worry my brains about that. "Hughes Delivers Ultimatum." Um-um-um-um. Oh, what's the use of wading through that? "Starving Europe Turns to America." Huh! We've been feeding 'em for years. "Hungary Again in Arms." What do I care for what's going on away off there? Ah! "Wife of Rich Man Found Murdered. Husband Under Arrest as He Is Known to Have Affinity." My! Doesn't that sound interesting! Glad there's a good long account of it! (Every word devoured.)

"Oh! here's the evening story and the Chats for the Lovelorn. I must read every word of those, they are always so entertaining, especially the Chats. Girls do ask such droll questions and Miss — is so delightfully ironical in her answers."

"Um-um-um-um. Oh here is Sellem and Cat-chum's advertisement! 'Satin camisoles marked down to $1.98.' My, that's a bargain. They used to be $2. I'll have to run in there tomorrow."

"Oh, here's the personals. Now I can see if they've got in anything about Mrs. Richey's European tour. Um-um-um-um. Here it is. (Turning to the last page.)

"Ah-h-h! Here are the classified advertisements—now for a feast!"

Nider is not arguing with Mr. Harding. He is telling him. We shall have to go far back in the history of American politics to find the parallel for an ultimatum upon a President so arrogant in context and so impudent in form. We shall have to go far to find the parallel to so rank an avowal on the part of a special interest of its determination to get what is coming to it.

LODGE'S FRIENDS STANDING UP
(Brooklyn Times)

Henry Cabot Lodge having sounded the keynote in his campaign for re-election to the United States senate, we may calculate the political campaign of 1922 has started. Henry has a lot of friends in Brooklyn and the district who say he is going to win.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

The indictment of two women who testified for the defense in the Arbuckle case on perjury charges, is but a continuation of the trail of the serpent. The case has been most nauseating from the first. Now it develops that evidence against these two women has been secured to show that the testimony they gave in an effort to strengthen the case of the fat buffoon was manufactured out of whole cloth. It is to be hoped that, this being proved, they will meet justice and that no soft-hearted jury will show them leniency.

So far a motion picture goes Arbuckle is dead. No self-respecting theater proprietor would dare show an Arbuckle film. It is said that the producers face a $5,000,000 loss because of Arbuckle's disgraceful party in San Francisco. But has anyone heard that anything has happened to the hotel that allowed this fat buffoon to have all the wild time he craved and all the liquor he wanted?

It is evident to those who watch developments that no real effort is made to reach all the responsible parties. We hear of the victims of opiates but we never hear of the persons supplying the opiates receiving a prison sentence. We read of the liquor parties in hotels, but never that the hotels harboring the booze are punished. What we need is hard-fisted, red-blooded officials driving ahead into the teeth of the whole rotten bunch of violators of the law, steam-rolling them with the power that is back of them, the greatest power in the land, respect for law and clean American citizenship. The majority of the people are good. It is the minority that is attempting to set aside and override the laws, the Arbuckles and such and the reason they appear to be able to do it is because the law-abiding people allow them.

District Attorney Brady in San Francisco should have the support of all decent citizens in his efforts to secure justice and punish perjury. The Arbuckle case is such a nasty mess that it seems a pity to blot even a few inches of white paper by writing about it.

Did you ever stop to consider what an interesting document the hotel register, especially in Southern California, must be? It carries the names of persons from every part of the world, guests who are prospective residents. It is an old saying in newspaper offices that there is a story on every hotel register, in fact on every page of every hotel register. Each signature carries its own particular significance. Its owner may hail from tropical islands or the frozen ice fields of the north. He may be a noted scientist or explorer, a surgeon whose work has saved life or a physician whose treatment has allayed suffering. Each name represents an individual, perhaps an important one, maybe just an ordinary person. And every signature is different just as every face is different. And always the procession is moving, always the names are changing. What a wonderful document the hotel register is, after all.

Are you a loafer? Are you doing your share of actual toil? Are you one of the great number of amusement-mad, frivolous, unthinking persons who add nothing to the world's stores? Petty harsh questions but the tendency toward idleness is such that it threatens the nation. It is not confined to any one class. It prevails among the people of moderate means as well as among the wealthy class. It is a real menace. This country cannot afford to have a loafer class. A return to old standards which made the republic the greatest nation in the world—that's all we need. We ought not to tolerate loafers.

Now that's off our chest it sounds like soap box oratory. If it is, it's good sound sense at that. And perhaps we need a little of the better class of soap boxing.

In the old melodramas, the kind where the villain would say, "Curse you, Jack Dalton," one of the favorite trippers was a man bridge over a canyon and the heroine would make her escape running across to safety. The motion pictures have also played this feature to the limit. Now comes a story from Philadelphia where a man attempting to rescue a Irish carrier struggling in the water, had himself rescued by a human chain made up of his playmates and boys had been throwing sticks across the ice which the dog refused. The animal broke through the thin ice and without hesitating the boy plunged in after him. His two boy companions seeing this danger joined hands and sliding across the ice hauled the boy and dog to safety.

Announcement that Princess Fatima is broke in London and will have to be sent back to Afghanistan at the expense of the British government must come as a shock to cigarette smokers who must have felt that they were supporting her in luxury.

The Yuba county board of supervisors have come to the conclusion that it is about time the Volstead act was enforced in their jurisdiction, so they have taken the matter into their own hands, passed an ordinance fixing $500 as the maximum penalty and six months imprisonment. Here is a community that intends to show respect for law and organized government.

There is nothing new after all. On March 1, 1922, the editor of a newspaper published in Norristown, Pa., recommended that the postmaster-general avail himself of a flying machine invented by James Bennett of Philadelphia to carry the mails. One hundred years after the suggestion was made the government adopted it.

America is not the only country in which the jazz craze has a hold. In France a warning has been issued against modern dancing and jazz music as imperiling the nation. It leads to drug taking and other vices which are said to be undermining the citizenship of the country.

Here's a mental yardstick. Define the following terms: Solstice, writ of habeas corpus, perihelion, neap tides, exogamy, agent, rotation of crops, common law, common carrier, gold merchant, law merchant, climatic cycle, usury, demesne land, Black England, artificial boundary, bailment, villain, erosion. This is a freshman brain-teaser devised by Professor Dana Carlton Monro, head of the department of politics and history at Princeton. It looks as if he was trying to go Edison's list of questions one better.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

One of the big downtown firms advertised for young men the other day. Some one had evidently gone absolutely bla in the office. This talk of hard times and calamity and soup lines had completely failed to register. What that firm wanted was young men and it wanted young men in a hurry. Because they were needed to get more business and to handle the business already secured.

"But we do not want you unless you can make good," the advertisement read, in effect. "No clock-watchers, gingers, or tardy tads are needed on our premises. Before we hire you we want to look you over. Come in, spend three days, and if you're good you're hired."

It just happens that I know one of the eccentrics who helps the business curve of this firm to keep shooting up. So I talked to him. I wanted to know what a watcher could find out in three days by watching young, slick-haired, earnest applicants for jobs, every one of whom was on his best behavior.

"Easy," said the eccentric. "We can at least listen, can't we? Even if we may be deceived through our eyes."

Then he said that the trait he wanted above all in a beginner was the ability to listen. Most young folks, he said, had acquired a sort of a shellac social finish. They glisten, they are shiny, and they do not wear well. The average youngster, he said, was apt to think about something else when the boss was trying to teach him his new job. He could not concentrate because he had never been taught to listen.

"But he makes up for that," said the eccentric, "by the facility with which he chatters."

The man who knows how to listen, said the eccentric, will always hear more than the man who talks. Given the same quality of brain, that gives him an immense advantage over his competitor.

"We want men," said the boss, "who can think. And no man can think when his attention is being distracted by the uproar coming from his own chin."

Respectfully submitted.

LODGES - CLUBS - CHURCHES

MRS. TOLL AGAIN PRESIDES

For the first time in two weeks, Mrs. Charles H. Toll of Kennel Road, who is president of the Los Angeles Ebell club, was able to preside at a meeting of the organization on Wednesday, having recuperated from her second attack of "flu." The first one followed an auto trip to San Francisco and return in which Mr. and Mrs. Toll were caught in the edge of the blizzard which stalled so many machines in the mountains. They succeeded in reaching Bakersfield, where they had to leave their car for several weeks, Mrs. Toll being so ill she had to go to a hotel for several days until well enough to take the train for home.

She is eagerly looking forward to a week-end visit from her second son, Gerald, who is now attending the state university at Berkeley and who has just been elected to the oldest fraternity in the school.

Letters from her oldest son, Herbert, who is a student in the Boston School of Technology, report that he has been ill of influenza.

Unpleasant as it is to be a victim of the epidemic, it has a compensating advantage in demonstrating how many friends you have, Mrs. Toll says. She received quite an ovation when she appeared upon the Ebell platform Wednesday.

MESSERLYS GIVE CHARMING DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Messerly of 640 North Orange street entertained Thursday evening at a charmingly appointed dinner party, the affair being in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The house was beautifully decorated in sweet peas, stocks and ferns. The small dining tables were decorated in sweet peas, with hand painted wreaths used as place cards and individual French bouquets at each place.

The anniversary was unknown to any of the guests, but on the place card was printed the figures 25-22 and each guest was requested to guess what these numbers meant. R. L. McCourt guessed correctly and congratulations were then in order.

After the delightful dinner had been served, in which Mrs. Messerly was assisted by her three daughters, Elizabeth, Katherine and Janice, the guests spent a most enjoyable evening of dancing, cards and music.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. John Robert White, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McCourt, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. White, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Heustis, Mr. and Mrs. James Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Southard, Miss Ada Geis and Mrs. Hardenberg.

MRS. FARMER ENTERTAINS

Mrs. C. W. Farmer of 1138 San Raphael avenue entertained Wednesday night with a birthday dinner in honor of her sister, Mrs. T. A. Coppock of Los Angeles. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Coppock, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kemper, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Conger and daughter, Elizabeth, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Farmer and two children, Margaret and Jack.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY MEETS

The Ladies' Aid society of Central Christian church met Thursday at their regular all-day meeting, there being about 20 ladies present. The president, Mrs. Daugherty, was unable to be present on account of illness. The day was spent in quilting and sewing and at noon a delightful luncheon was served.

MARTIN IS ASKED FOR RESIGNATION

plete with "cuss" words, a near fist encounter and, in fact, everything that goes to round out a pleasant evening.

After quiet had been secured Councilman Lapham made the following motion:

"As chairman of the public welfare committee of the Glendale city council, I move that the city manager be instructed to request the resignations of Chief of Police A. O. Martin, and Officers George Delgado, George J. Herda, Walter Trautwein and J. A. Balthasar."

The motion was seconded by Councilman Stephenson and was immediately followed by a motion by Councilman Kimlin to the effect that City Manager Reeves be instructed to take charge of the police department until a successor to Chief Martin can be selected.

Councilman Lapham then offered the following motion:

"I move that the city attorney be instructed to draft an ordinance bringing all merchant patrols, private detective agencies, etc., under the immediate jurisdiction of the Glendale police department." This was passed unanimously.

In public comment on the action taken, the three councilmen who voted "aye," said, as follows:

Councilman Kimlin: "Of all the things I have had to do while a member of the city council, this is without exception the most distasteful. I am extremely sorry that this matter ever came before the council, and when it did come up that I was compelled to take the action that I have taken. But in voting as I have I am acting for the interests of Glendale to the best of my ability."

Councilman Lapham: "This is one of the most disagreeable duties I have ever called upon to perform. I have great respect for all of these officers, but in the interests of harmony and the good of Glendale as a whole, I feel this is the only action I can take."

Stevenson: "This has been an extremely painful experience to go through. Even though we disregard the evidence, we know that there exists in the police department of the city a feeling that should not exist. I feel that for the interest of the city as a whole this is the only way the conditions can be remedied, and in seconding this motion I do so only with the interests of the city at heart."

The charges in full are as follows:

Following are the charges brought against Chief Martin and the names of the complainants:

Walter Trautwein: "That the affiant has reason to believe and does believe, that the defendant attacked the affiant's character in a defamatory and slanderous manner without just cause or reason, in the presence of one or more witnesses."

George J. Herda: "That affiant has been unable to follow out the duties of his position in a highly efficient manner because of the arbitrary attitude of the defendant, A. O. Martin."

"That he was unable to serve a warrant for the arrest of one Mahony for an unreasonable length of time, viz. warrant dated January 27, 1922, and was not served or attempted to be served until February 25, 1922, because of defendant's interference."

"That defendant prevented affiant and Detective Sergeant G. Delgado from serving the warrant for the arrest of one M. G. Ellis, by requiring the affiant and the said G. Delgado to pay a social call on a newspaper reporter who at that time was home, sick."

"That defendant sent James Mann, desk sergeant, to El Centro, California, to arrest and bring back one Mr. Armstrong, wanted on a felony charge, instead of sending affiant and his assistant, George Delgado, said action causing considerable comment about the implied inefficiency of affiant and said George Delgado."

"That defendant ordered affiant and George Delgado to act as supervisors for high school girls at high school affairs, when more important duties were at hand."

"That at various times defendant ordered affiant to serve civil processes and then demanded and took an equal division of the fees received from said services."

"That on or about the 5th day of January, 1922, affiant was introduced by defendant to one Mr. Scoffa, a representative of Chubb & Son, managers of the Federal Insurance company of Chicago. That defendant so introduced affiant and recommended him to Mr. Scoffa to aid in the recovery of certain jewels taken in the Bent Jewelry robbery in Philadelphia."

MISS POOLE SPEAKS AT EAGLE ROCK

Miss Helen Poole who is living at 1221 East Windsor road and who is a member of the Glendale Music club, was the luncheon speaker of the Twentieth Century club of Eagle Rock Thursday. She spoke before a large audience and was enthusiastically received. Her subject was "The Influence of Music Upon Children in the Public Schools."

Miss Poole is declared to be one of the greatest supervisors of music in the United States, having been at the head of the music department covering the 75 public schools of Milwaukee for the past eight years. Previous to that she was a noted contralto singer in Chicago in some of the largest churches of that city, with such artists as Madame Johnstone-Bishop and George Hamlin, in quartet.

Miss Poole is taking a vacation after her strenuous work and has been a resident of Glendale for about a year.

Pa. That affiant was then employed on said case for a period of about ten days, two days of which were on the city of Glendale's time, and that affiant was instrumental in the capture of the criminals in said case, and the recovery of some $85,000 worth of diamonds.

"That on or about the 18th day of February, 1922, affiant was told by defendant that a letter and a check for $50 had been received, said check being made payable to affiant by the aforementioned Federal Insurance company of New York city, and that defendant then stated as follows: 'You know what the understanding was—you get the check cashed and give me half, because if it wasn't for me you would never have gotten the case.'"

"That affiant offered to endorse said check to defendant and telling him to cash it and keep what he deemed was his rightful share."

"That defendant refused to do this, saying, 'No, there might be a "comeback".'"

"That defendant told affiant that he (affiant) must cash the check and then divide the amount."

"That defendant then offered to wait until affiant's pay day for his demand share."

"That affiant wished to consult the city council about the disposition of said check but was ordered to keep the matter strictly confidential and not to even tell Sergeant Delgado, because he (defendant) believed Delgado was not on the square."

"That affiant did not believe defendant entitled to a division of the check, but has reason to believe and did believe that he would be discharged by defendant if he refused defendant's demands."

George Delgado: "That on or about the 10th day of January, 1922, defendant was advised by Officer C. B. Anthony of the Glendale police department, and by Dean Williams, of the Glendale fire department, a special officer of Glendale, that they had arrested one Samuel Soper (a minor) for violating section 21 of the Motor Vehicle Act of California (a felony), and had cited said Soper to appear before the Glendale police judge at his court on the following day at 10 a. m."

"That on said following day in said courtroom when said Soper's case was called for hearing, Officers Anthony and Williams, the arresting officers, were not both present, only Officer Williams appearing."

"Then defendant ordered affiant to testify against said Soper, but the officer stated that he did not know personally of the case and the particulars."

"That defendant then told affiant to testify and he would tell affiant what to say."

"That affiant refused to so testify in said case."

Ire J. Herbert: "That defendant, A. O. Martin, chief of police in Glendale, has used his official authority and influence to hinder, defame and damage affiant and has defamed and has hindered and damaged affiant in the pursuance of his work."

"That defendant on or about January 2, 1922, asked that affiant discharge from his employ Frank Walker, because he was too friendly with James L. Brown and John Scales, which affiant refused to do."

"That he maligned the members of the Glendale Patrol and Fire Dispatch, and planned to disband said patrol, by arresting and prosecuting said members, and stated he would get Herbert and Walker, defame and damage affiant and has defamed and has hindered and damaged affiant in the pursuance of his work."

"That on or about the 14th day of January, defendant ordered affiant and Frank Walker to turn in their badges because of defendant's malice, knowing the absence of said badges would prevent their authority to properly protect their business places under their patrol service."

"That on January 14, 1922, the defendant ordered the arrest of one of affiant's employees, and took away his authority to carry concealed weapons and attempted to charge him with impersonating an officer."

"That on or about January 14, 1922, defendant maliciously injured affiant's character to the detriment of his business by securing a special deputy sheriff's badge at said time."

"That on or about March 2, 1922, defendant refused to swear in C. Murphy as a special officer, unless he brought in ten years' experience, which was unreasonable and discriminatory."

"That defendant, when asked if he intended each special officer to give ten years' experience references, stated, 'I intend that your man shall, meaning affiant.'"

Carl A. Blix: "That on or about the 15th day of October, 1921, defendant, A. O. Martin, received in custody two Ford automobile cushions from the chief of police of Burbank, California."

"That defendant instructed affiant to transfer said cushions to defendant's private machine, and made such transfer on or about the 15th day of November, 1921."

"That on or about the 20th day of November, 1921, $3.70 was stolen from a satchel in the custody of the Glendale police department. That affiant has reason to believe and does believe that the defendant has on numerous occasions stated in the presence of one or more persons that affiant probably stole said $3.70, and so stated with malice and intent to injure affiant's character."

"That affiant's character and reputation was injured by said allegations as to his honesty, said allegations being unfounded and unwarranted and malicious."

Mrs. A. G. Smith: "That on or about the 19th day of December, 1921, affiant's home was entered by burglars, affiant locked in a bathroom by said burglars, and approximately $10,000 in jewels taken from the home of affiant."

"That 19 hours after the above mentioned burglary, defendant, A. O. Martin, acting in his official capacity of chief of police of Glendale, California, came to affiant's home and there and then stated that this burglary looked funny to him."

"That defendant made no attempt to capture the burglars aforementioned, and that affiant has reason to believe and does believe that defendant did not notify the Los Angeles police department of the said burglary."

"That affiant has reason to believe and does believe that defendant termed the said burglary as an attempt to collect the insurance. So that affiant's character was in jeopardy because of the defendant's unwarranted and unreasonable allegations."

"That said jewels to the approximate value of $10,000 were recovered through two detectives of the Los Angeles police department."

"That said detectives were compelled to advertise said jewels in a newspaper to locate the owner, because of the defendant's negligence in not informing the Los Angeles police department."

Frank Walker: "That on or about the 14th day of January, 1922, affiant was called to defendant's office and defendant demanded affiant's badge. Affiant demanded reason for such demand and defendant stated as follows: 'There have been too many robberies around here lately and I don't want to be implicated.'"

"That on or about January 14, 1922, affiant was arrested by order of defendant, who stated that he had a felony charge to place against affiant and would send him to jail, and further charged affiant with going to a certain residence and demanding entrance, saying that he was a police officer, the said charges being false and untrue."

"That on January 14, 1922, defendant used discourteous and insulting language to affiant's wife at defendant's desk."

"That on January 16, 1922, affiant was arrested by order of defendant and charged with petty larceny, and that defendant refused to permit affiant to get bail and then offered affiant two minutes to get said bail."

"That defendant conspired with Arthur Rice, self-confessed thief, to cause the arrest of the affiant, and did conspire and cause the arrest of affiant with malice aforethought."

"That affiant was tried in the Glendale police court by a jury and found not guilty on February 28, 1922."

"That defendant instructed his detective sergeants to 'get something on' affiant and Herbert."

"That on or about January 16, 1922, defendant referred to affiant's wife in a defamatory manner in the presence of several witnesses."

Qua Balthasar: "That on numerous occasions he asked that the chief of police suggest the urgent need of a combination-lock safe for the proper protection of the money and valuables in the custody of the police department, and was informed that such was not necessary. That on or about the 25th of January, 1922, $21 was reported missing from the desk sergeant's desk and unaccounted for, and that on the following day the chief reluctantly consented to affiant composing and writing a letter to the city manager asking for an appropriation for a safe and enumerating the needs thereof."

"That on numerous occasions the chief was cheaply sarcastic, and in the habit of publicly insulting his subordinates, much to the detriment and inefficiency of the members of the police department. That he has incouraged the secret enmity of his subordinates by his unwarranted behavior and arbitrary abuse of his authority."

"That defendant made insulting and derogatory remarks about the police magistrate."

"That defendant has posted a bulletin asking that each member of the police department bring an article to beautify the chief's office."

"That at the time of the A. G. Smith robbery, the defendant stated that he did not wish it given any publicity and that he did not want bulletins sent out about it, because it was a damned frame-up on the part of Smith to collect the insurance on a staged robbery. That it subsequently developed that the jewels, or a part of them, were recovered by Detectives Murphy and Wood of the Los Angeles police department."

"That he planned and ordered the arrest of the members of Herbert's patrol and fire dispatch on the charge of carrying concealed weapons and impersonating police officers because of personal enmity, and after having sworn in as special officers at least two members of his patrol."

"That the defendant remarked on the day following the discharge of Officer Jones: 'You know, Jones is a little crazy, like most ex-service men, and not fit to be on the police department.'"

"That on the day Mr. Kerns, a distinguished member of the marine corps, made his application for a position on the department, defendant remarked, 'I'll hire him all right, I guess, because Reeves recommended him—you know he's a fanatic on ex-service men. He thinks anybody with an honorable discharge is all right, but you know as well as I do that most of them are bums and not worth a damn for anything.'"

"That defendant has conducted his office in a weak, incompetent and desultory manner, regardless of the provisions and precepts of law, dignity and custom."

"That defendant discharged affiant by informing him vitriolously through a patrolman, that he was no longer needed in the police department. That defendant so discharged him without apparent cause or reason and without any warning or notice."

"That defendant failed to give reason for such action when questioned, and falsely and intentionally stated and published that affiant had resigned, leaving the obvious and despicable implication that the disappearance of the $21 and affiant's resignation was connected."

REAL VAUDEVILLE AT T. D. & L. TODAY

Again the T. D. & L. theatre features its vaudeville road show for today and tomorrow. This week's program is made up of five standard acts of vaudeville, in variety comprising comedy, instrumental, song and dance numbers, headlined by the three singing wizards Cook, Furney and Mack. For the film feature, Pola Negri in "The Last Payment" is the offering and it is said this picture is a remarkable one.

On Saturday at the matinee only the serial picture, "With Stanley in Africa," will be given for the young folks. This picture is taken from history in that it deals with Stanley's rescue of the scientist-explorer Livingston. The children, especially, will follow these adventure chapters weekly with an eagerness and earnest interest that all good pictures for them have the faculty of doing. It is an altogether good show.

Some women are not afraid in the dark and others are afraid of the light.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE BUCKET SHOPS

The war against the Put-and-Take factories, otherwise known as bucket shops, is on again. Every little while the authorities declare battle on these ancient institutions, the bucketteers flee to Palm Beach, a few firms bust, the newspapers get a good story, the investors get an education, and after all the excitement has died down the bucketteers resume business at the old stands.

The only difference is that they renew operations with new and large buckets.

This time, however, the war is being waged with more determination than ever, and so many bucket shops are busting that Wall Street's "hust measure" may reach new and alarming proportions.

It already has become necessary to take a roll call each morning to see if there are enough brokers left to do business.

It is almost impossible to get parlor car reservations on any outgoing trains. Fleeing bucket shop proprietors are cornering all the chair seats.

A heavy increase in railroad business is one result. This ought to cheer holders of railroad stocks. A bucket shop pirate is a bucket shop pirate fleeing or arriving, however, and it is reported that many of them have while in full flight, sold bogus oil stocks to the engineer of the train.

A bucket shop is a great institution. You can start one in any telephone booth and pick your customers out of the phone book. Human experience has shown that the mere mention of oil to the average man, without specifying whether it is hair oil, bicycle oil, or salad oil, immediately opens his gullibility pores and causes him to take the bait like a starving sailfish.

No office equipment is essential. Many a broker uses a goldfish jar as a ticker and looks down a fish's throat for the latest quotation on steel common. Some of them keep a bee in a metallic jar in order to furnish casual visitors with a sound like a ticket's buzz. If a customer becomes suspicious they sic the bee on him.

This is rather foolhardy, because while it is always easy to get customers it is very hard to get bees.

The average investor thinks Central Leather is something that comes from the middle of the cow.

He thinks General Motors was on Pershing's staff and that Mexican Pete is the character played by Holbrook Blinn in "The Bad Man."

He is quite confident Otis Elevator is the name of a rising young banker, that Dome Mines is some

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair. Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen in a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

kind of a headache tablet, and that a thriving bucket shop broker rarely reads "Life" or goes to a farce-comedy. He not only gets all the laughs he can stand in his business, but all the best "jokes" are his customers.

GLENDALE MUSIC CO. HOLDS SALE

The big alteration sale of the Glendale Music company, 109 North Brand boulevard, is on. It has been caused by an absolute demand for more rooms, better equipment, etc. It is an acknowledged fact that high class instruments such as are carried by this firm, cannot be displayed to advantage in anything but high class surroundings. And this sale has been put on.

The Glendale Music company, of which the Salmacia brothers are proprietors, has taken a new lease on the room in which it is located, and in order that it may present to the people of Glendale one of the finest music establishments in any suburban city in Southern California, it has decided to spend not less than $2000 in improvements. These will include a complete change of the front display windows. Each window, located on either side of the front entrance, will be enlarged to 9x15 feet, making a pair of the finest display windows in the city. The entire interior of this store will be refurnished in the most artistic manner possible. An especially arranged room for the demonstrating of reproducing pianos, and another for the reproducing of player rolls, will be added, and all of the present departments will be enlarged and beautified.

This company has secured the agency in Glendale of the Henry F. Miller pianos, the Gubrasen player pianos, which are nationally priced, that is, the price for this instrument is the same in all parts of the country. It also is the local representative for the Martin saxophone and the Orpheus tenor banjo. This company is agent in Glendale for some of the leading make instruments, including the Chickering, the Ampico, the Baldwin and the Apollo. Victrola is the phonograph that is featured at this establishment, and the firm also carries everything in the way of records, sheet music and in fact, everything that one may expect to find in a music store of the very highest character. The Glendale Music company is the pioneer music firm of Glendale, and ever since coming here it has tried to maintain the "leads" among music houses.

"We are trying to create a music store of which the people of Glendale may readily feel proud," said Vincent Salmacia, one of the proprietors of this store, this morning. "It is our aim to take the lead among the suburban music establishments in Southern California, and we believe that when our present improvements are completed our store will be second to none in this section of the country. In the past the people of Glendale have shown that they appreciate the efforts we have been making to give them unexcelled musical service."

In this alteration sale this firm is selling rebuilt pianos at unheard of prices — these being placed at $95 and up. New pianos are being sold at from $295 and up, while on many of the piano players reduction as high as $200 are being made. On every instrument in the house some reductions are being made. And the company is making an especial effort to make the terms so that they will fit every pocketbook, thus making it possible for the man with a limited income to have music in his home. The same courteous treatment that has been a policy of this firm since its first day in Glendale, is used in connection with every transaction. Thus far this sale has been "going big" according to the proprietors of this music house. For the benefit of those who cannot attend this sale throughout the day this store will remain open in the evenings.

EVERY CITIZEN IS SUBJECT TO TAX

Collector Declares Minimum Income Is Only Disqualification

"Every citizen of the United States," said Collector Goodsell yesterday, "is subject to the provisions of the income tax law. He may live in this country or he may live abroad, possessing no property within the United States and deriving no income from sources within the United States. Nevertheless, he must file a return if single and his net income for 1921 was $1000 or more, or if married and his net income was $2000 or more or his gross income was $5000 or more. Divorcees or persons separated from husband or wife by mutual agreement are classed as single persons.

"The same obligation to file a return and pay the tax rests on a resident alien, although his entire income may be derived from sources without the United States. "While forms were sent to persons who last year filed returns, failure to receive a form does not relieve an individual of his or her obligations to file a return and pay the tax on time — on or before March 15, if filed on a calendar year basis. Forms 1040-A for returns of income of $5000 and less, and 1040 for returns of income in excess of $5000 may be obtained at the office of Collector of Internal Revenue, Los Angeles, Calif."

STOP AND SHOP OPENS SATURDAY

Stop and Shop, 223 North Brand boulevard, will open its doors to the Glendale buying public on Saturday. This firm, which comes from New York, will carry a complete stock of ladies' and children's ready-to-wear goods, notions, millinery, etc. The stock that is now being placed on the shelves is the very latest word along these lines, and the visitor to this store will be given many surprises.

J. Iles, proprietor of this establishment. He has for the last 19 years been connected with the largest business houses in New York. Mrs. Iles will assist her husband in this business, and will give the people of Glendale the benefit of her 15 years' experience in this line of endeavor. For several months Mr. and Mrs. Iles have been looking over Southern California and have decided that Glendale is the place for them. They are more than pleased with this city and believe that Glendale has a wonderful future.

FROM THE BOTTOM UP

George F. Maddock, who recently retired as General Manager of the Sutter Basin Company, has been a big factor in California farming for the last seven years, during which Sutter Basin has been under development. When Editor Knollin wrote regarding Sutter Basin that "engineers have a way of turning nature topsy-turvy" he was paying an indirect tribute to Maddock and his great work. Maddock is a man of real achievement and his story is of a poor boy who struggled for an education and won the right to tackle and carry through a big job. When he was 21 years of age, Maddock was a married man with a mechanical trade. He was a linotype machinist and did not have a high school education. Despite the financial responsibility of a wife and child he prepared himself to enter college under a special tutor, paying the expense as well as family living out of his wages. The preparation required nearly a year. Then he went to Stanford University, got a job and entered college to take the engineering course. Still with his wife and family to support, he made his way through college and was graduated in engineering, emerging from the years of hard work and study not a cent in debt and with the education and determination to carry him farther. This is just a sketch of the man's life, but it will give some idea of the sort of stuff required of a man to make good in a big way. The personal history of all men who have achieved something worth while is pretty much the same. Hard work, intelligently applied, leads to big things.

Old Bloybottle went to stay with his friend Goldbags. Goldbags had a swaggar little place in the country, and among other conveniences had a private golf club.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

All the time Louis Thomson was eating his breakfast the red dog kept eying him with one silky ear set like a question mark. "Well, Pal, now what are you thinking about?" teased the little boy. "Are you scared there won't be anything left for you if I ask for another helping? Or did something happen at Dr. Muskrat's Pond? I know where you've been all night. You can't fool me when you come home as full as burrs as you are now."

"Aurgh!" protested Pal. "If I could only make you understand! I want to know what Shem wrote down about Mister Noah's cruise in the Ark when all the animals sailed with him."

But of course Louis never would guess. So Pal had to wait until they met Tommy Peele and his good old dog, Watch, on the way to school. "Watch," said he, "what do you know about the Ark?"

"Nothing much," smiled Watch. "Cause I've heard there was one, but it was long before my time. Why?"

"I've got a reason. Come here," Pal sobbed led the way to a sunny spot where the schoolhouse steps kept the wind off them. And there he repeated the whole long tale Dr. Muskrat had told at the Widow Squiggle's reception the night before. All about how the squirrel and the beaver and the muskrats hadn't been on Mister Noah's Ark at all because they came through the Big Flood on an oak tree ark of their very own. "And so that's why they don't have to obey men the way we do," he finished. "But isn't it very strange?"

All This Time Louis Thomson Was Eating His Breakfast the Red Dog Kept Eyng Him.

"Not at all," returned Watch, scratching his whiskers to hide the way they were twitching. "I wasn't strange considering that Chips and Ripple Beaver and the squirrel were the ones he was telling."

"But he was telling me, too," "Ah, but you couldn't live their way and eat their food. Besides, dogs had been obeying man long before then. Of course, Mister Noah'd have the dogs to help him."

"But isn't it queer their own grand-parents never told them?" "No," said Watch. "Not every one has a memory like Dr. Muskrat's."

"Another thing," persisted Pal. "In those days he says beasts could talk so men would understand them. But Louis didn't know what I tried to ask this morning though I said it plain as plain."

"Pal!" the old dog couldn't keep on hiding his grin. "I don't understand you myself. You talk like a fuzzy pup. Don't you know by now that Dr. Muskrat remembers some very remarkable things?"

NEXT STORY: LYING AND INVENTING DIFFERENT.

He was a struggling Scottish farmer and he had the good fortune to win the hand of a widow who possessed in her own right the sum of 5000 pounds.

Shortly before the wedding a friend went to congratulate him. "It's a fine thing for ye, this wedding, Sandy!" he said.

"Aye, it's no bad," replied the farmer. "No' bad. Why, it's worth 5000 pounds the ye, isn't it?"

"No," sighed Sandy, "less than that. Ye see, 'twill cost me 17 an' 6 pence for a marriage license!"

"Well, bloom," a physician asked a young colleague just starting in.

"In the mornings practically no one comes," was the reply, "and in the afternoon the rush falls off a bit."

FEBRUARY REAL ESTATE RECORD SHOWS WELL

Endicott and Larson Have 17 Transactions, Others Do Well

Seventeen real estate transactions were completed by the Endicott & Larson Realty company, 116 South Brand, during the month of February, which is going some for a "quiet season." A majority of these sales were homes in Glendale, the prices of which ranged from $4,000 to $15,000, and several of the better homes in Glendale were among the ones that changed hands. In the list of sales for February are numbered also several North Brand boulevard business lots, for which there is an increasing demand. It is seldom in the history of the real estate business that one sees such a rapid advance in realty values as has taken place in connection with North Brand boulevard business lots. Pieces of property in that section have almost doubled in value during the past year and the prospects are that 1922 will see an equally great increase in the value of these lots.

"We are very optimistic and enthusiastic over the future of Glendale and we believe that before long the real estate business in Glendale will be better than it ever has been," said Mr. Endicott this morning. "There are more real cash money buyers coming into our office right now than there have been for some time, and this leads us to believe that the rush of tourists from the east may have started. Thus far in 1922 our business has been far in excess of what it was in 1921 to this date."

"We find there is a keen demand for close-in residence lots. Those wishing these are desirous of using them on which to erect homes for rent or to be occupied by the builders."

"But, taken all in all, we are more than pleased at the way things are coming along in a business way. We have nothing to be discouraged about and the prospects for the future are bright."

A great deal of our success we attribute to the pulling power of the classified advertising of the Glendale Daily Press. We have never received such response as we are now getting from this advertising medium."

Norton's Orange Manor Is Selling

Fifty per cent of the lots in Norton's Orange Manor, located on Norton avenue in the northern part of Glendale, have already been disposed of and inquiries for this property are coming in every day, according to Roy D. King, who is exclusive selling agent for this subdivision. The lots in this tract are all 60 by 200 feet in size—about one-third of an acre—and they are selling for $1800 and up. All of these lots are covered with citrus fruit.

The improvement work in this tract is rapidly nearing completion. The laying of the curbs and sidewalks has been finished and the laying of the water and gas pipes is going on at this time. This improvement work is being done by Peter L. Ferry, one of Glendale's leading road work contractors.

Dutton Is Making Sales

"Yes, we are doing some business," said Mr. Dutton, manager of the Dutton Home Fynder company, corner Glendale avenue and Colorado street, "and after all is said and done we can say that business might be worse. Of course, we could handle a little more business than we are taking care of, but on the other hand we are not starving to death."

"As a matter of fact, during the past few days we have turned a number of deals that will have a very material effect in bringing up our March list of 'transactions completed.' By this I don't mean that we are selling everything in Glendale. There are others who are keeping the grass from growing under their feet, and these are the boys who are picking up a little of the hard-earned real estate money. In short, we are working hard and are getting our share of the spare change. If business was any better we'd have to leave town."

Johnson had been prosecuted for a rather doubtful offense.

"Jim Johnson," said the judge, in his severest tone, "the jury has taken a very lenient view of the case. You have had a very narrow escape, and it should be a lifelong warning to you. After this you ought to keep away from bad company."

"Yes, yer honor," replied Johnson. "Ye won't find me here again in a hurry."

To Remember Lectures

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Said a friend to me the other day, when I happened to speak of an impending lecture:

"I used to attend public lectures pretty frequently, but now I seldom go to them. I would go oftener if I could remember better what lecturers have to say."

"As it is, I carry away from the lecture hall very little of what I have heard. And in a few days that little is almost completely gone." This is a common complaint. Little, no doubt, it is due to inferior lecture methods.

And even when there is compactness, clearness, and logical construction, the lecturer's vocal delivery may be so poor as to cause a dulling or an overstrain of his hearers' attention, to the detriment of memory.

On the other hand, it also is true that hearers do not, as a rule, make any serious effort to remember lectures. There would be far less complaint of forgetfulness if those attending lectures were to adopt, for example, the memory-aiding method recommended by Dr. Abraham Myerson in his recently published "The Foundations of Personality."

"In my own teaching," says Dr. Myerson, "I always instruct my students in the technique of memorizing, as follows:

"1. Listen attentively, making only as many notes as necessary to recall the leading facts. The auditory memories are thus given the first place.

"2. Go home and read up the subject in your textbooks, again making notes. Thus are added the visual associations.

"3. Write out in brief form the substance of the lecture, deriving your knowledge from both the lecture and the book. You thus add another set of associations to your memories of the subject.

"4. Teach the subject to, or discuss it with, a fellow student.

"By this you vitalize the memories you have, you link them firmly together, you lend to them the ardor of usefulness. You are forced to realize where the gaps of your knowledge come, and you are made to fill them in."

This method, obviously, is not one suited to a lazy man. But, based as it is on the sound principle of multiplying associations, it is an admirable method for all who sincerely wish to gain more than a fleeting memory of the lectures they attend.

Make trial of it for yourself, if you now are troubled with forgetfulness of lectures.

Provide yourself beforehand with an authoritative book on the subject of the next lecture to which you intend to go. Find a friend willing to discuss the lecture with you after you have written it out according to the Myerson plan. The result is pretty sure to repay you amply for the time and effort involved.

PLAY SCHOOL WILL FEATURE SUMMER UNIVERSITY

New Idea in Child Training to Be Studied; Other Notes

Due to the great interest shown in the novel educational plan of a Play School, the University of California summer session will again conduct one of these schools during the coming session which opens June 26. The marked success of this branch of the summer work in Berkeley has also caused W. M. Hart, dean of the summer sessions to increase the faculty and the facilities for this work. Children between the ages of four and eleven are admitted.

The Play School, a combine play-center and school organizes activities out of which subjects develop instead of offering subjects of instruction to the children. The teacher's interest is in the children, who are considered both as free active agents, and also immature social creatures, requiring control and discipline.

Mrs. Olive Dorrett, a gifted teacher of music in Berkeley, will instruct in rhythmic and musical activities. Mrs. C. W. Hetherington, who was one of the originators of the Play School idea, will again manage the department.

General information regarding either session can be obtained on application to the Dean of the Summer Session, 831 Pacific Finance Bldg., Los Angeles, or 105 California Hall, University of California, Berkeley, Calif.

Growth of Redwood on Cut-Over

A remarkable growth of redwood on cut-over land is reported by W. Metcalf, associate professor of forestry and E. Fritz, assistant professor of forestry of the University of California. A second growth redwood forest in Mendocino county, 50 years old, contained more than 100,000 board feet of timber per acre, as determined by a measurement made in July, 1921.

This measurement shows that California redwood forests produce a greater amount of board feet than many eastern forests. As a comparison, a good forest of virgin spruce timber in the Adirondacks contains about 10,000 board feet per acre. The redwood area measured, however, was on good bottomland. On ordinary soil, the growth cannot be expected to approach this figure. Measurements of the yield on other areas in the state are being made by Donald Bruce, associate professor of forestry, University of California.

Bulletin on Pruning Fruit Trees. Information on the pruning of young deciduous fruit trees is now available as a result of the reprinting of Bulletin No. 313 of the University of California Agricultural experiment station. The first edition of this bulletin was exhausted very quickly and the demand for a reprint has been insistent.

The bulletin was edited by W. P. Tuttle, assistant professor of Pomology of the University of California. He reports the results of pruning experiments with almonds, apples, apricots, cherries, peaches, pears, plums, prunes, and walnuts. The results of these experiments throw much light upon the best methods of shaping young trees to bring them into earlier fruiting and to secure larger and stockier trees in a more economical way. A copy of Bulletin No. 313 may be obtained by addressing the University of California College of Agriculture, Berkeley, Calif.

Waste in Lumbering. The reduction of waste in lumbering is a principle being furthered by all organizations interested in the conservation of forests, says Walter Mulford, professor of forestry of the University of California. Agricultural experiment station.

During 1921, a preliminary study of waste of redwood in logging and at the sawmill was made by the California district of the United States forest service in cooperation with the division of forestry of the University of California. Certain possibilities in reducing waste, as developed by the preliminary investigation, will be studied in greater detail this year.

Controlling New Blackberry Pest. Methods of controlling a new blackberry pest, the blister mite, are being investigated by E. O. Essig, associate professor of entomology of the University of California agricultural experiment station. This new pest is attacking and causing great damage to Himalaya blackberries in the Santa Clara valley. The insect attacks the blossoms and developing berries causing deformation, abortion

BAPTIST LADIES ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. E. E. Ford Selected as President for Another Year

The ladies of the Baptist church held their all-day meeting Thursday, beginning with morning sewing. At noon luncheon was served from tables attractively decorated in green and white, with District No. 2 as hostesses.

The afternoon was given over to the election of new officers for the coming year, re-electing Mrs. E. E. Ford as president; Mrs. Frank Boynton, first vice-president; Mrs. Oran Howard, second vice-president; Mrs. P. L. Hatch, third vice-president; Mrs. George H. Rowe, secretary; Mrs. E. H. Grigg, treasurer.

Reports were read by the different chairmen for the present year, after which devotionals were read by Mrs. Jennie Dossie.

Mrs. Dossie also gave an interesting talk on "What a Dollar Can Do" in reference to missionary work. Mrs. Arthur Sisley closed the meeting with a vocal solo.

For the present, recommendations for control consist in winter, spring and summer applications of weak solutions of commercial lime-sulphur and arsenic sulphur.

Exposures of marine strata in the southern part of California have recently been investigated by the University of California paleontology museum. This museum was recently founded by Miss Annie M. Alexander and was established by the Board of Regents of the State University.

A valuable collection of extinct mollusca was made representing many species of shell fish. Marcus A. Hanna, teaching fellow in Geography and Mr. Georges Vorbe who were sent on the expedition by Prof. Bruce L. Clark, director of the museum, studied and collected a fossil fauna from rocks of marine origin. They covered the regions extending from La Jolla to San Diego and in the vicinity of Sausalito.

The collection shows the presence of strata of Cretaceous, and Eocene ages in the La Jolla-San Diego section and a fauna of Pliocene age for some of the Sausalito rocks. The shell fish were as numerous as they are today and their soft parts have possibly contributed to our present petroleum supply.

Dehydration of Prunes. Dehydration of prunes is a success declares A. W. Christie, assistant professor of fruit products of the University of California agricultural experiment station. The dehydrated prunes delivered to the prune and apricot growers' association in 1921, 95 per cent were of the first quality.

Dehydration has proved to be as cheap as sun-drying and often produces a superior product. It has been found, also that dehydrated prunes can be as easily processed in the packing houses as sun-dried prunes.

In addition to prunes, experiments have been made by Prof. Christie in co-operation with commercial firms, on berries, apricots, peaches, pears, apples and pumpkin. In many cases the results of these investigations have been applied commercially with marked success. Rapid expansion of the dehydrating industry in California is predicted.

Sierra Forest Endangered. The Sierra forest of California may soon face a dangerous enemy, says Walter Mulford, professor of forestry of the University of California agricultural experiment station. The white pine blister rust, a destructive disease attacking five needled pines, has been found in British Columbia and the State of Washington.

This disease is a native of Europe and was not found in this country until 1906, having been introduced on nursery stock. It has been established in New England, New York, Minnesota, and Wisconsin for some time.

Seven western pines are subject to attack: sugar, western white, limber, white-bark, fox-tail, bristlecone and Mexican white. The first two are among the half dozen greatest western timber trees. All of the seven add greatly to the beauty of western mountains. Vigorous measures are now under way to attempt to stamp out the disease in the west.

Mealy Bugs on Pear Trees. Methods of controlling mealy bugs on pear trees have been developed by E. O. Essig, associate professor of entomology of the University of California in investigations during the past season in Santa Clara valley.

Successful results can be obtained by removing the outer rugged bark very carefully and thoroughly, particularly on Winter Nellis trees. This should be followed by two or three thorough applications of miscible oil or crude carbolic acid spray before the buds begin to swell. In case of very serious infestation the spraying should be followed during the early development of the fruit with the application of plain water in order to kill as many of the newly hatched insects as possible.

The crude carbolic acid spray will give thoroughly satisfactory results at a very much less cost than the proprietary materials. It can be made as follows: Dissolve 40 pounds of whale oil soap in 25 to 30 gallons of hot water. Add five gallons of crude carbolic acid and five or ten gallons of spray distillate. Stir thoroughly. Add water to make 50 gallons. Bring to a boil and stir for 20 minutes. For use, dilute one part of this stock solution with 20 parts of water.

MULTIPLE LISTING MAKES HEADWAY IN GLENDALE

To Be Seriously Considered at Next Meeting of Realty Board

The Glendale Realty Board, which is composed of about 40 of the most active and prominent real estate agents in Glendale is giving serious thought to the establishment in Glendale of the multiple system of real estate listing. The putting into effect of a system of this kind will be discussed at the next regular meeting of the board. The members are now doing preliminary work in the adapting of this system to conditions that are to be found in Glendale. This system is not new, in other sections where it has been tried out it has proven a decided success. The big job that is before the members of the board who have the working out of this system in hand is to adapt the features of the system to local conditions. It is generally believed by members of the board that the putting into effect of this system will be the biggest step that has ever been taken in Glendale toward putting the local real estate business on a universally satisfactory and efficient basis.

The operation of this system is about as follows: When a piece of property is listed with any member of the realty board that property is listed with that agent exclusively. As soon as he receives this listing this agent immediately turns it into the multiple listing department of the board, and in turn the head of this department sends it out to each of the members of the board. It will be seen that although the listing has been made with but one agent, every member of the board begins working on this property within 48 hours after the listing has been made. This saves the property owner the trouble of tramping all over the city and spending hours of time listing his property with the many agents of the city.

This multiple system works to the benefit of the buyer, the seller and the agent. It assures the buyer that after he has spent considerable time selecting the property he wants, that property will not be sold when he finally decides to take it, for it frequently happens that an agent finds a buyer for a piece of property only to learn that the property has already been sold and he has not been notified by the former owner. By this system when a purchaser decides to take a piece of property that parcel of land will be ready for delivery.

So far as the seller is concerned he has, in the first place, but to list his property with one agent, and if at any time he desires to withdraw his property from the market has but to notify that particular agent of his decision, whereupon it is immediately withdrawn from the market. This also pertains to any increase or reduction in price that the seller wishes to make in connection with his property. In the event of a sale the seller does not have to chase around and notify all the agents with whom his property was listed that his piece of real estate has been sold. When the sale is made the agent reports this fact to the system headquarters, which immediately notifies every member of the board.

This system assures the agent that when he has succeeded in getting the buyer and the seller to agree upon the terms on any piece of property and his commission has been earned he will be able to deliver the piece of real estate in question. This will automatically eliminate one of the difficulties in the present system now in use in Glendale. The agent with whom the property is listed will get the entire commission in the event he personally makes the sale, but if some other member of the board makes the sale the listing agent will be given one-half of the commission.

There are many other ways that this system will be a benefit to all parties concerned, and these will be announced just as soon as preliminary details have been worked out and the board is ready to put the system in operation, which, it is believed, will be within 60 days.

"No, sir," answered the young man, off his guard for the moment—"of Marjorie."

While visiting friends in Cleveland a young Detroit was presented with a quart of rye whiskey. He decided to take it home in his suitcase. As the steamship neared the dock he became more and more nervous. Finally in desperation he confessed his fears to a fellow voyager. This kindly individual offered to trade suitcases and assume all responsibility. The young man was vastly relieved and the change was made. The luggage was not searched and a few minutes later the two met on shore. The young man was exceedingly grateful. "By the way," he observed, as they exchanged again, "you must have a lot of things in your suitcase. It's awfully heavy." "Yes," said the stranger. "I have twelve quarts in mine."

APPLIED OINTMENT

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

In a little house down by the river that was a picture-postcard effect of frost and snow, with evergreen boughs interlaced along its banks, a sick woman tossed one December night.

In the moonlight, along the crunching snow, her husband tramped back from the little town where he had been to consult the doctor and to bring medicine. The man looked displeased and as he entered the little house he announced:

"Only a box of salve! That will do no good."

"Don't be too sure. It may be the very thing for the painful arm," said the pleasantly plump woman who had been staying with the sick woman while her husband went into the village. Going over to the table, the neighbor examined the little box with interest. Holding it under the shaded lamp, she looked at it closely, even sniffed at the cover slightly, then said that she should not be surprised if the ointment proved most useful, as she was quite sure that it was the same ointment the doctor had sent for her husband's shoulder, and that it was wonderful.

Visitor is Very Certain

"How do you know it's the same?" asked the sick woman, whose bed had been moved into the little kitchen bedroom for company.

"Smells of wintergreen. There isn't anything better for aching muscles and bones," said the neighbor, bustling about and making a great display of clean towels, as well as commandeering a wash basin and a cake of soap.

"What are you going to do?" I thought salve was slapped on a raw and stuck on the sore place."

The neighbor, tugging at his slippers and placing his snowy boots beside the stove.

"In that case the ointment should be sterile, because if it is to be used as a dressing there will probably be a wound. Then I should spread it on sterile gauze, and if I had no sterile gauze I should iron some old muslin with a very hot iron, and boil an old silver knife until I knew it was sterile. Then I should dip the sterile knife blade into the ointment and spread it like butter on the sterile muslin."

"But this ointment is different. This is to be rubbed into the skin and absorbed," said the neighbor.

"How do you know?" asked the man.

"I read the directions on the box," the woman said, wisely.

"But why are you going to wash the knife?"

my arm," asked the sick woman, with a flicker of interest.

Motherly Neighbor Explains.

"Because the ointment the doctor sent is to be applied to obtain a local effect and to be absorbed," explained the motherly neighbor pleasantly, washing the sick woman's painful arm and shoulder with warm water and soap, and rubbing the skin with a soft towel until it was soft and rosy.

"That is to increase the blood supply near the skin surface, and will cause the ointment to be absorbed more readily," she explained.

Then, dipping a small portion of ointment from the box with her own well-washed fingers she applied it gently, rubbing it into the painful area slowly, with a rotary movement.

When the skin became red and warmly glowing the sufferer declared that the pain was already less. And as the neighbor warmed a soft old piece of flannel and wrapped it around the afflicted arm the neighbor declared that she was not surprised, because the ointment was most excellent. In fact, it was the same as the doctor had sent to her husband, she said. She was quite sure, because it smelled of wintergreen.

Don't worry about your looks. You will always look good to your friends.

Talk Makes Trouble

By JOHN BRECK

Yes, talk certainly does make most of the trouble in this world, even in nature, which is usually called dumb. A voice seems to guarantee that its owner possesses that disturbing quality of self-assertion which breeds aggressiveness. And voices are commoner than you may suspect.

Take the caterpillars; amiable and retiring as a rule, the bold-marked infant of the sphinx moth, who deliberately scares the birds, has a squeak, though he alone knows where it comes from. Queerly still I found it when a small, helpless, soft-fleshed salamander raised an audible protest as I tried to plant him like a seed back in earth whence he was dug. And he backed his objections with gestures which left me in no doubt that he is quite a terrible creature to cross down among his toothless fellow-squirrels. Now I would not be very much surprised if a snake yelled at me for laying a disrespectful hand upon its tail.

Mr. Hudson has heard snakes hiss and click in their private conversations; it must have boded ill for some one, for the most gregarious of creatures do not seem to feel the need of anything beyond such whispered reassurances of well-being as you sometimes hear from a haystack that a covey of quail is nestling in. Rabbits and deer are at once the quietest and the most inoffensive of beings.

Perhaps they are too much of one kind to have any individual ideas worth exchanging.

Winter is the silent season. Then even the noisy and pugnacious sparrows are gentlemen. They hang about the back door at breakfast time waiting for the dog to lick the milk and bacon scraps from her porridge bowl, with fastidious tongue and then amicably share her leavings.

But when the first thaws of spring stir one to song the truce is broken. He may be merely bursting forth with his plans for the busy times to come; he may be singing the praises of a tawny hen some other bird thinks of choosing, or he may claim the porridge dishes of the future for his own. Whatever he says, it's wrong. He is wanting himself above the rest of them; some one answers and the fight is on.

And we, who have elaborated the process beyond any of them—we may be more subtle in our remarks, but now and then we awake to the fact that it comes to much the same in the long run.

Methusalem probably lived to a ripe old age just to spite some girl who had married him for his money.

If a girl has fiery red hair it is a sign that all her acquaintances will tell her it is golden.

SOB SISTER SEEK SUICIDE'S SLOPPY SENSATION

CHICAGO, Mar. 10.—Every fifth drink sipped in Chicago's "Greenwich village" today was to the "health" of Miss Mary Virginia Lester, 17-year-old artist model and sob sister.

Miss Lester took poison after an unrequited love affair and was near death.

In a farewell note to her sweetheart and other "villagers" she asked, "Would it be asking too much to request that every fifth drink be drunk for me?"

Woodlands Meeting Postponed.

The meeting of residents and property owners in Verdugo Woodlands set for Saturday evening, March 11 has been postponed to a later date, which will be hereafter announced. The reason for the postponement is that the committee on gas has not completed its work, but the committee reports favorable progress, and expects that its efforts will be entirely successful.

CHATS WITH MARTHA ALICIA

I WAS ARTFULLY LURED INTO the FASHION SHOPPE, 406 South Brand Blvd., today, by a stunning evening gown, designed by Madame Geraldine. Without question, she creates the most delightful gowns and frocks, to suit one's own personality, that I've ever seen. But the amazing part of her art, however, is the low price standard which she maintains. Madame Geraldine's fame has spread so far abroad that she is now unable to do ought but to attend strictly to the designing and made-to-order business. This makes it necessary for her to close the ready-to-wear department which the Fashion Shoppe has so successfully operated, thus affording you the opportunity you've been looking for to buy a spring wardrobe at a moderate cost. All of her beautiful dresses will be sold at practically cost! Stop in and look at them the next time you're down shopping!

THESE ARE THE DAYS when 'tis a perfect joy to wander around, from shop to shop, selecting here and there, the interesting and the novel to bring to you, dear homemaker, that your duties may be more pleasurable! And this is just the season when the shops are filled with all sorts and kinds of lovely things, designed expressly, me thinks, to make the feminine heart beat a wee bit faster!

For 'twas only today I gazed longingly at one of the most beautiful evening dresses of the season—then, up the street in one of our own Glendale shops, I was simply fascinated with the wondrous display of lovely jewelry—and so on through the list! So, here, in these columns, I'm bringing you word of the latest of the merchants of Glendale are offering for your approbation—that you may, in part, enjoy my days' visitings with me!

A delightful sports costume is of white wool jersey ornamented with bright green bands and embroidery.

INDEED IT IS A CONVENIENCE to be able to simply telephone BAINES'S SHOE REPAIR SHOP, at 312 East Broadway, and have them call for and deliver your shoes! But the beauty of it is, that Mr. Baines's prices are conceded to be the cheapest in town—despite his excellent delivery service! Why, do you know, that they'll call for a pair of shoes in the morning, repair and return them the same afternoon! $1.50 is the price for sewed soles and rubber heels—ladies' shoes; and $1.90 for men's. While, if the kiddies' shoes are ripped, just send them down to Baines's—and he'll repair them free of charge!

Lace flowing from a green taffeta hat lends that mystifying note which plays such a part in the Parisienne's life.

YOU'LL KNOW THAT SUMMER—with all its glorious evenings to be spent on the porch enjoying the cool breeze—is high—when you see the lovely new grass furniture that has just been received at the ENTERPRISE FURNITURE CO., 216 East Broadway. There are inviting rockers, and good-looking tables, as well as comfortable settees—for the summer cottage—at prices that you can easily afford to pay. And, too, if you are refurbishing don't forget that the Enterprise have a charming selection of beautiful rugs—also at extremely moderate prices!

Among the modes designed for spring is an interesting new model of black crepe marocain.

JAMES W. PEARSON specializes in pretty new bungalow homes. You must see those three new ones he has just completed. One six-room, and two five rooms. They have hardwood floors, tile mantels, beautiful electric fireplaces, colonial built-in buffets, every attractive convenience. The prices and terms are reasonable.

"Never let one half of your dinner grow know what the other half is doing," is the parable of the dinner fork. Drapery appears often on one side; panels have shifted until they are both on one side and trimming on the right side makes a dressy gown or a Quakerish left.

Trimming on the new spring coats and wraps is decidedly varied, braids and embroideries being much used, with applique work also favored.

THE BEST is, of course, none too good for that lovely new home! That's why you'll want to select your fixtures at the SMITH ELECTRIC CO., 631 East Broadway. They've just taken this new store, and it is so attractively decorated and furnished, that it makes an ideal setting for the beautiful line of fixtures which they carry! Today I noticed in particular the lovely wall bracket candles—so popular in the new colonial bungalows! Smith's carry a full line of the Universal electric appliances, too—so there's no reason why your can't be an electric home!

Skirts that are seven to nine inches from the ground are short enough for comfort, and that seems to be the generally approved length.

Fashions for Americans

One mid-season and two early spring hats are shown in the sketch. The upper hat, for mid-season wear, is made of a soft gray velvet combined with silver lace. The full crown is of the velvet and the wide brim of lace edged with a soft roll of the velvet. This hat would be suitable for restaurant or dinner wear.

The next hat features a crown of slipper satin, a fabric very much favored for early spring headgear, and the brim is of crepe ribbon wired and arranged lattice fashion. The lower hat has a crown of gray straw braid with brim covered with sinillas in various shades of yellow.

Medium sized crowns, fashioned to fit the head snugly, and brims of medium width are two of the style recommendations for spring, and the brim that is narrower in the back than in the front promises to be very popular. Certainly this type of brim is comfortable and it is generally becoming.

Of featherweight are some of the hair braid hats now being shown for southern resorts and early spring, and frequently in very high shades. All reds are said to be good in millinery, green of the jade family is approved and yellow, several tones of blue and the dahlia shades are also good.

Faille is one of the silks very much featured in the development of spring hats, this with slipper satin rather replacing taffeta except in hats for children, where it reigns strong.

Many of the new hats show but little trimming, a gracefully and becomingly draped veil being all that is required.

The eight-day clock is a hard worker and a chronic kicker.

Many a man's credit is bad because he is unable to make good.

A Hat for Mid-season and Two Spring Chapeaux Are Here Shown.

BLACKMAILERS ATTEMPT TO VICTIMIZE PROMINENT SOCIETY MATRONS

Blackmailers, in efforts to force sums of money ranging from $15,000 to $25,000 from five prominent Washington society matrons, have threatened death to their victims unless they "come through," police in the capital city have announced. Threatening letters have been received, it was declared, by Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, widow of the "copper king"; Mrs. Henry White, wife of the former American ambassador to France; Mrs. S. B. Elkins, Mrs. Scott Townsend, social leader, and Madame Christian Hauge, widow of a former Norwegian ambassador to America. Photographs of the former three are shown here.

LORETTA AND THE DRAMA

"A person can get more entertainment just walking a few blocks in our neighborhood," said Loretta reflectively, "than can be found in many a real theatre."

"That isn't saying much these degenerate days," said her brother, lazily. "But I get you, just the same."

"I rejoice that you do," said Loretta. "I was afraid the remark might be too deep for an ordinary intelligence. It is such a beautiful afternoon that I went out for a five-mile walk and I feel as if I had been reading a three-volume novel."

"Pray, let me have the opening chapters at least," begged her brother with mock eagerness. "How does it begin?"

"It begins with me strolling down Malcolm avenue," said Loretta. "There I saw two little girls running home from school. It was pretty cold over there and they had to run to keep warm. I fancy their mother had dressed them so ridiculously. Just as they reached the corner one little girl fell flat and her big lunch box opened and a vacuum bottle flew out with a crash."

"Both little girls sat down on the sidewalk and began to cry as if their hearts were broken as well as the vacuum bottle. People passing looked at them sympathetically, but nobody did anything until the door of the drug store opened and the druggist came out. He asked the children some questions and they told him how terribly their mother would scold, and the one who had fallen said she wouldn't be allowed to go out and play for days and days as punishment. The druggist talked a while in too low a tone for me to hear and then picked up the smashed bottle and went in with it. When he came out of the store again he had a new one in his hand just like the old one, and he told the child to put it in the box and keep still about the accident. The children went away too happy for words."

"Hurrah for the Good Samaritan!" said Loretta's brother. "Let's buy all our postage stamps there after this."

"Oh, I don't know," said Loretta seriously. "I spoke to a woman standing near me about the man's kindness and she told me it was the man's own child. She added cynically that it probably wasn't the first thing that he and his two little girls had done on the quiet, with such a woman at the head of the household."

"Chapter one is not cheerful," complained her brother. "I stopped at the yellow front store to get some sugar," said Loretta, "and was surprised to see a man at the desk in his shirt sleeves. A clerk was holding his coat and overcoat, and another was patting the man all over, the way the police do on the stage. It seems that he had started out after having made a 10-cent purchase, and a can of sardines had dropped out of his pocket. This had led to his being searched and the finding of a lot of other things. He had taken literally the sign that said that it was a help-yourself store."

"Great stunt!" said her brother approvingly. "I'll try it some day."

"As soon as they had sent the man off in company with a policeman," said Loretta, "a woman raised the cry that she had lost her purse. They said the man did not have it, as they had searched him carefully, so the whole staff and all the customers hunted for nearly ten minutes for that purse. I was getting tired and was waiting to pay my bill, when somebody discovered it. The woman had large buttons on her big, heavy coat, and all the time they were looking for that purse it was hanging on a button just where it had caught when she dropped it. "After leaving that store," continued Loretta, "I stopped in a moment at the bakery to get some raisin bread and had to wait for a woman who asked for a nickel's worth of ham."

"For Pete's sake!" exclaimed Loretta's brother. "She must have wanted it for the canary."

"She did not tell us for whom or what it was intended," laughed Loretta. "She was too busy objecting because the woman had put a thin piece of tissue paper under the ham while she weighed it. She had no intention, she declared, of paying for a sheet of paper in addition to the ham. The woman explained to her that the paper was very thin and was intended to protect the ham from the rather dusty glass on the scales, but the woman was stubborn and refused to buy the 5 cents' worth of ham until the sheet of paper was removed. She wore a wonderful fur coat and handsome shoes and a regular creation of a hat."

"Of course," said her brother, "that's the way to do." "Lestly," said Loretta, as she gathered up her things to go to her room, "as I was looking at the signs in front of a movie house, trying to see whether there was anything cheerful going on, the show 'let out, and I found myself walking along beside a girl and her young man. They didn't even see me, for she was saying she didn't believe fellows ever did things like that for girls, and he said he'd do it any day for her, and would she listen there just a minute, because he wanted to tell her he thought she was just about the finest thing that ever stepped. She gave him one look and snuggled close, and I heard her tell him she liked him better'n any fellow she had ever known, so there!"

"And so," said her brother, "the three-volume novel ends, as it should. They lived happy ever after."

NOVEL FILMING AT THE GLENDALE

A novel touch has been given to "Flower of the North," the James Oliver Curwood special production, which will be shown at the Glendale Theatre. This touch is found in the prologue which shows the North country in the days of the French Chevalier, when knights fought for a fair lady's hand. This comes in decided contrast with the story itself, which deals with the North country at the present day. All the scenic beauty of the Northland, and an ideal cast of players, selected because of their fitness for the roles make this picture one of the biggest Curwood productions to be presented to the American public. It is a story that moves.

It has been said of James Oliver Curwood that he is one of the few writers who write action, and that his stories are more easily adapted to the screen than any other work. "Flower of the North" is considered one of the best of Mr. Curwood's books.

"Divvie a bit do I believe the messages these mediums are after gettin' from the dead!" declared Dugan. "Ye I can't be tellin' whether they're true or not!" "More fool ye! Ye can, and I can prove it!" contradicted Monahan. "Well, prove it!" asserted Dugan.

"I will. By mistake I was reported as killed in the war and one day my sister went to a medium, who told her I was wishin' I was back on the earth."

"Well," said Dugan, "that proves—"

"Listen, the medium was right. As that very time I was on a transport in a high sea, d'ye mind?"

SUNFLOWER YOUR FIRST METHODIST STEERS FOR FAT EXPERTS ADVISE

Plants Make Good Silage at Washington Experimental Station

Sunflower silage gives as good results in fattening steers as more expensive feed, as is proven by an experiment just finished by the Washington Experimental Station.

This is the first of a series of experiments to be made on the feeding value of sunflower silage, the price of which per ton is $4, as compared with 46 for corn silage, $48 for alfalfa hay, and $40 for cottonseed meal.

Twenty-five Shorthorn and Hereford steers were fed, 13 receiving an average daily ration of 2 pounds of cottonseed meal, 13.2 pounds of alfalfa hay, and 39.5 pounds of corn silage to each steer. The other 12 steers were fed 2.1 pounds of cottonseed meal, 12.5 pounds of alfalfa hay, and 42 pounds of sunflower silage.

Both lots gained 1.2 lbs. per head each day of the 75 days of the test, the total gain per steer being a little over 90 lbs. The cost of feed for each steer receiving the sunflower silage was $13.52, as compared with $15.97 for each of the other steers. No difference in condition in the two lots could be detected.

The tops in both lots of the 18 head sold brought $7.25 per hundredweight, the others bringing $6.50. The steers averaged about 1,050 lbs. at the close of the test. They cost about $5 apiece as feeders.

"It is evident that there is sufficient margin for profit," said Jerry Sotola of the animal husbandry department, discussing the results. "The returns from the sunflower silage fed cattle were higher than those from the corn fed cattle, because the corn was $2 a ton higher in price."

Michigan Members Entertain the Class at Regular Event

The Sisterhood class of the First Methodist church held their regular monthly business and social meeting Thursday afternoon at the church.

Several reports of the officers and various committees were read. At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Mark Russell, president of the class, called Mrs. A. P. Torrey, teacher, over to her side and presented her with a Boston shopping bag as a birthday gift from the class. The gift was presented with some original poetry written by Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Torrey was surprised beyond words.

The entertainment of the afternoon was given by the Michigan committee, or those ladies who are from Michigan. Mrs. Helen Scripps was the leader and she held a musical contest of old songs, playing them over on the piano and having each guest guess what song had been played.

Mrs. C. P. Geiger guessed every one of them. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served to about 52, by the committee in charge which included Mrs. Anna Glendening, Mrs. A. P. Torrey, Mrs. E. F. Geiger, Mrs. Edward Kretschmer, Mrs. E. R. Simmons, Mrs. Switzer and Mrs. W. H. Fuez.

A young English undergraduate had exceeded his leave by two days.

"Well," said the professor, "what have you to say for yourself?" "I'm sorry," replied the student. "I really couldn't get back before. I was detained by important business."

The professor looked at him sternly.

"So you wanted two more days of grace, did you?" he asked.

It's true, Herman; the better half of the family never knows quite as much about how the other half lives as she would like to know.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

THE JOY BRINGER

JAMES W. FOLEY

He worked in the office where I did, Yes, many a long year ago, He was patient and plodding and faithful, The kind that the world would call slow. But when the day's work was quite over He'd lock up his desk and would say: "I must take something home to the children— Good night!"—and he'd be on his way.

We were youngsters and he was much older, He had cares and we had none at all, He was careful of all of his pennies, For the best pay in those days was small; And we might leave the office together But he'd stop in some shop and he'd say: "I must take something home to the children— And always he left us that way.

It might be some pop-corn or candy, A cheap little book or a toy, That cost but a few pennies may be, But it seemed to give him lots of joy To put some small thing in his pocket, He never forgot for a day, To take something home to the children To eat or to read or for play.

His great coat was worn and was shabby And no whit too warm, that I know, But there always was room in the pockets For a bag or a parcel or so; His hat was quite old I remember, One tie served a whole season through, But he took something home to the children Each night when he went that way new.

We were most of us youngsters and thoughtless, It did not impress me much then, But as I have grown a lot older I think of it time and again; I used to note only his old coat And tie and it seemed somehow sad, But he took something home to the children— Who knows all the gladness he had?

Andre Tardieu on his last official visit to Washington was taken to task by a Senator's wife about the code of Napoleon, which is very hard on women. "But," said Tardieu, "if you give women an inch they will take an ell. A woman went into a Washington bank the other day to get a check cashed. 'This check,' the teller said, 'isn't filled in, ma'am.' 'No? How so?' said the woman, with a puzzled smile. 'Your husband's name,' the teller explained, 'is signed to the check all right, but it doesn't state how much money you want.' 'Oh,' said the woman, looking relieved, 'is that all? Just give me, please, all there is.'"

Old Blowbottle went to stay with anxious for a game, but after the first hole Goldbags waxed sarcastic over his visitor's play. "Who ever told you that you could play golf?" he demanded. "Who? Me?" quoth Blowbottle. "I'm playing just as well as you, anyway." "Why, man alive, you took fifteen strokes to make the first hole. Is that what you call playing?" "Well, I hit the ball every time, didn't it?" snapped Blowbottle.

TUJUNGA SOON TO BE HOME OF TRADES

'Home of Small Industries' Name Desired; Idea Growing Fast

TUJUNGA, March 10.—That Tujunga may become known as the home of many small industries, each employing a few people, rather than the site of several big factories, the Verdugo Hills Business association, following the lead of the Verdugo Foothills Record, has undertaken the task of compiling a list of industries which might be carried on at a profit here.

There are many people in Tujunga who are proficient in some of the arts and crafts, and all these people, together with friends and neighbors whom they know of who are interested, are invited to furnish information as to what they can do, to F. M. Ashby, chairman of the Business association committee on industries, or to the Verdugo Hills Record.

It has been seen and noted with some alarm that so far Tujunga has established no foundation for an industrial future. By an industrial future one does not necessarily mean a future of big, smoky factories, issuing forth a stream of tired workers every evening. With the natural setting which Tujunga enjoys she might become known throughout the land as the "home of the small industry."

Many Tujungans are now carrying on in their homes infant industries which, expanded a little, would furnish employment for several people, as well as provide a comfortable income for the founder. Metal working, designing, dressmaking, carving, painting, gardening and many other kinds of handwork, all these are the nuclei for a little industry. With the increased transportation facilities which Tujunga is constantly acquiring, little trouble would be found in marketing the products.

A little advertising and press agenting paid for from a community fund would establish the "Tujunga Trades" in the minds of people all over the country. The movement is still in its infancy. Splendid opportunities are open for those who help push the movement along. No great outlay of capital will be needed and it is felt that for this reason many will be attracted to the plan who would not care to invest heavily. The only means by which those who are forwarding the plan may carry it through to a successful conclusion is by the help and cooperation of every resident of Tujunga.

In order to keep in closer touch with the activities of the Haines Canyon Water company, Harry Lynch, recently elected president, is moving to Tujunga from Glendale. He will occupy the cottage of Mrs. Lulu Warrington in the Lazy-Lonesome ranch subdivision. Mr. Lynch was for many years city engineer for Glendale, and helped materially in solving its water problems.

To meet one of Tujunga's most pressing needs, that of a city directory, C. Wesley Miller will undertake the matter of gathering data for one. Mr. Miller was one of a committee appointed by the Business association to investigate the practicability of compiling a directory, and decided to do the work himself.
